IN THE BEE TO-DAY

U. S. Department of Agriculture,
Weather Bureau,
Toledo, O., Aug. 29, 1892.

There is a narrow trough of low barometric pressure extending from Kansas northward to Lake Superior, and the indications are that it will pass over the lakes and cause showers over the lake region.

The area of high pressure which was over the extreme northwest on Saturday morning has moved southeastward and is central this morning over Wyoming.

The barometer over the eastern portion of the country is above the normal.

The temperature has fallen decidedly over the west and southwest; Cheyenne reporting a temperature of 32 degrees. Over the eastern half of the country the weather will continue warm for a day and become cooler.

Rains have fallen during the past 24 hours over portions of Montana, North and South Dakota, Minnesota, Iowa, Kansas, Nebraska, Missouri, Ohio, Kentucky, Louisiana, Arkansas and the south Atlantic coast.

Generally fair weather prevails in all sections except from Nebraska, northwestward over the lakes where it is cloudy and rainy.

Forecast for Toledo and vicinity for 36 hours—Fair, followed by showers, warmer to-day, cooler to-morrow.

THE CHOLERA.

Will It Reach the United States.

England Has Discoved Several Cases,

And Many Boats Are Headed This Way.

Great Alarm in Victoria's Country.

News Bulletins From All Over the World Wherever the Disease Has Shown Itself.

Berlin, Aug. 29.—The Berlin Post publishes a letter from a Hamburg physician here, who makes the gravest charges of neglect against the authorities.

"Not even the first precautions are taken to prevent the spread of cholera. A sailor attacked with cholera was left for two hours lying on a pontoon near the Baumwall before he was removed. The cholera hospital is crowded and is in an unsanitary condition. The streets are swarming with the poorest and dirtiest people. The Elbe, with its partly dried banks, is a receptacle for much rotten refuse. It is the duty of the empire to remedy the existing evils and at once."

The National Zeitung also comments strongly upon the attitude of the Hamburg senate in ignoring the precautions ordered by Prussia in July, and expresses the hope that the present state of affairs will lead to a bill that will enable the laborers of the imperial sanitaryoffice to benefit the whole nation. These comments voice the popular feeling that the time has arrived to abolish the special privileges guaranteed to single states and to extend the central power of the empire.

Berlin, Aug. 29.—In accordance with the announced policy of the kaiser to let the public know all about the progress and extent of the cholera visitation, official placards have been posted throughout the city announcing that Asiatic cholera exists here and containing exhaustive advice to the public on the subject of sanitary arrangements. The authorities are everywhere enjoining the strictest attention and obedience to sanitary regulations, and streets are being cleaned with more than usual thoroughness.

London, Aug. 29.—A large amount of indignation has been caused by the announcement that the crew of the steamer Gerona, which arrived at Middlesborough, Yorkshire, yesterday from Hamburg, were unwisely allowed to scatter to their homes. The Gerona is the steamer whose crew appeared to be all right when they landed, but one of whose seamen were seized with cholera soon after and died last night.

The population of Middlesborough is unfortunately in altogether too favorable a condition for the spread of cholera, owing to the destitution, want and consequent physical debility caused among thousands of the inhabitants by the recent strikes in the coal regions which supplied the iron and other industries of Middlesborough.

The local sanitary authorities are now doing what they can to prevent any serious result from their carelessness by tracing up and ascertaining the condition of every member of the Gerona's crew.

London, Aug. 29.—The steamship companies at Glasgow have telegraphed to their European agents to suspend for the present the acceptance of any immigrants by the Glasgow lines for American and other destinations abroad. Considerable apprehension already exists in Glasgow in regard to the Russian and other immigrants who have recently arrived there to take passage.

London, Aug. 29.—Chief Engineer Walker, of the steamer Gerona, which arrived at Middlesborough from Hamburg yesterday, died of cholera to-day at Dundee. The news has created a tremendous sensation, not only in Dundee, but everywhere else, where members of the Gerona's crew have gone. The national sanitary authorities are inquiring as to the remainder of the crew.

Panama, via Galveston, Aug. 29.—The federal authorities of Colombia to-day issued an order closing the ports on the Atlantic coast of Colombia to all vessels arriving from ports infected with cholera. This puts a stop at once to commerce with Germany, France and Belgium, so far as conducted through Antwerp, Hamburg, Havre and other places where cholera is known or suspected to exist.

Boston, Aug. 29.—A saloon passenger of the Cunard steamer Cephalonia, which arrived here from Liverpool yesterday, a lady who moves in the upper circles of Boston society was taken ill on the day of the steamer's arrival and is detained on board as a precautionary measure against cholera.

London, Aug. 29.—In an interview to-day Dr. Whitcomb, who inspected the steamer Gemma, which arrived there from Hamburg Thursday last, and three of whose passengers subsequently died from what was said to be Asiatic cholera, emphatically denies that the disease was the dread eastern scourge. He attended all three of the victims and says they died from cholirine. It is now said that the sickness on the steamer was due to acute diarrhea, and not to cholera.

The Laura is the vessel that arrived at Lynn, on Friday last, with two suspicious cases of sickness on board. The health officer would allow none of the passengers to land and ordered the steamer to put to sea.

Despite the denials of the presence of cholera in the country, the residents of Gravesend were thrown into a state of excitement to-day by the arrival there of two emigrant steamers, one of which was from Hamburg, while the other, as was subsequently learned, was bound for Hamburg.

The steamer from Hamburg was the Portia. She was subjected to a most rigid examination and all her passengers were mustered for medical examination. Not a trace of cholera was found. The steamer's physician reported the death of a baby on the voyage and the news of this spread among the townspeople and occasioned much alarm, the universal belief being that it was another case of cholera. Later it was found that the child had died from some infantile complaint.

As the Portia and her forty passengers were found to be free of infection, all the immigrants were allowed to land at Tilbury, opposite Gravesend. They all belong to the poorer class of emigrants.

A London firm has received an order from the Hamburg authorities for 300 gallons of disinfection fluids, and 35 tons of disinfecting powder.

The Evening News has reopened the agitation against the entry of pauper aliens. It demands that the government issue an order to prevent the entry of imports or immigrants from cholera infected ports. It adds that several of the immigrants from the steamer Portia have now gone to the east end of London, where they will probably develop the cholera in the next few days and become centers from which death will spread throughout the city.

Always open—the offer made by the proprietors of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. It's a reward of $500 cash for an incurable case of catarrh, no matter how bad, or of how long standing. They'll carry it out, too. It's one thing to make the offer. It's a very different thing to make it good. It couldn't be done, except with an extraordinary medicine. But that's what they have. By its mild, soothing, cleansing and healing properties, Dr. Sage's Remedy cures the worst cases. It doesn't simply palliate for a time, or drive the disease to the lungs. It produces a perfect and permanent cure. Try it and see.

If you can't be cured, you'll be paid.

The only question is—are you willing to make the test, if the makers are willing to take the risk?

If so, the rest is easy. You pay your druggist fifty cents and the trial begins.

If you're wanting the $500 you'll get something better—a cure!

Can you have better proof of the healing power of a medicine?

IS IT CHOLERA?

An Austrian in a New York Hospital.

He was Taken From a Hamburg Steamer and His Case is Being Investigated.

New York, Aug. 29.—Anton Potsel, an Austrian who arrived here from Hamburg two weeks ago, was taken to Bellevue hospital suffering from an ailment, some of the symptoms of which resemble those of Asiatic cholera. He was isolated in the old typhus tent, although the hospital physicians were unable to determine whether he had genuine cholera or not. It was the general impression among them that he was suffering from cholera morbus. To be on the safe side, however, he was isolated and will be kept so until the nature of his affliction is accurately known.

IN HURON COUNTY

Republicans Hold a Spirited Convention.

They Talk All Day and Go Home at an Early Hour in the Morning.

Norwalk, O., Aug. 29.—(Special)—The republican county convention held Saturday was the largest and most hotly contested convention ever held in this county. Owing to the large number of candidates for the various places and the interest manifested the convention did not complete its labors until 2:30 Sunday morning.

There were 13 candidates for sheriff and Nelson O. Allen, of New London, was nominated on the eighteenth ballot.

Four candidates for auditor. Dr. A. Sheldon, of Norwalk, with the Laning Printing company, was nominated for auditor after several ballots.

For treasurer, D. Kies, of North Fairfield, was nominated over several candidates after a hot contest.

There were six or eight candidates for commissioner, and Henry C. Barnard, of Lynn, was the successful man.

For infirmary director Lovell McCrittis, of Sherman township, was nominated.

A house belonging to John O'Donnell, of Cleveland, on Newton street, this city, was badly damaged by fire yesterday afternoon. It was occupied by Frank Barber, yardmaster of the W. & L. E. railway. The household goods were mostly removed.

The Hotel Belmont at West Ashville, N. C., which was leased by Dr. Karl Von Ruck, formerly of this city, as a sanitarium, was destroyded by fire one day last week. The furniture belonging to the doctor was insured for $25,000.

SYMPTOMS OF CHOLERA.

London, Aug. 29.—The steamer Talavera arrived at Grimsby from Hamburg to-day with two sailors suffering from cholera symptoms. They were removed to the floating hospital and the Talavera was towed to the quarantine station. The sickness aboard the Hamburg bark Helena, which arrived off Dover last night, proves to be a number of diarrheal cases, but the patients are recovering. The vessel was disinfected and was not allowed to communicate with Dover.

WAS WORKING A SCHEME,

But it Failed in Every Particular.

Combination Fraud of Lawyer and Doctor.

A Young Man who Neither Got Sympathy Nor Refused to Raise the Wind.

Keokuk, Ia., Aug. 29.—A stranger calling himself Angus Macallister has been attempting to work a puzzling scheme between Keokuk and Detroit. He is ostensibly a book agent, and claims to represent a prominent western house in the sale of an historical biography. He is rather short, with a full beard and long mustache, is not far from 35 years old and dresses in a very neat business suit.

He has been here about two weeks and evidently began his scheme August 16 by having printed here a dozen sheets of letter paper and envelopes with this card: "Alexander Dundas, Attorney at Law, 418 Fourth St., Keokuk, Iowa," claiming that he was the representative of a Chicago newspaper doing special work, which he afterwards denied. It appears that another office printed for him letterheads and envelopes for "Stephen Creighton, M. D., Keokuk, Ia."

On the 17th a letter was written from here on each one of these letterheads addressed to Miss Belle Donaldson, 422 Twelfth street, Detroit, Mich., in which, in the name of Dr. Creighton, he tenderly notifies her of the sudden death of Angus Macallister at the urgent request of deceased. He further states that the dead man had entrusted to him articles and documents of value which he had turned over to Attorney Dundas, with instructions to hold them; also that from papers found with the effects the relatives of Macallister reside in England. He closed with the statement that the young man no doubt held her in the greatest esteem, so far as could be gathered from incoherent mutterings before he died. The writer expressed his sympathy as a stranger.

The other letter, written over the name of Attorney Dundas on the paper bearing the attorney's card, tells her how he came into possession of the effects, including insurance policies in her favor, bank-books and jewelry, which by written testament the deceased bequeathed to her. He offers her his services, informs her that the burial is deferred until a cable can be received from the English relatives of the deceased, and requests her to advise him without delay of her wishes that they may have his immediate attention.

By some means he came into possession of a letter-head of the Deputy United States District Attorney here, on which was written an indorsement of "Dr. Creighton's" action in turning over his effects to "Lawyer Dundas," which is signed "Halloran," and which was inclosed in "Lawyer Dundas'" epistle to the Detroit young lady.

These letters were sent here by Detroit officials, and have been returned to that city. Macallister was still here to-day. The young lady has evidently detected fraud, for Officer Starkweather of Detroit writes City Marshal Trimble, of Keokuk, saying: "Miss Donaldson says you may tell Dr. Creighton and Attorney Dundas they can send his policies and effects to her and bury him there."

CONTRACT LABOR.

A Clever Game Worked by New York Officers.

Instead of the Agent They Walked Into the Arms of a Government Officer.

New York, Aug. 29.—Three men and one woman who arrived on the Werkendam last Thursday are in detention in Ellis island, debarred from landing under the contract labor law.

They were trapped by Chief Inspector Gilluly, who accidentally overheard a conversation from which it appeared that five men, and the wives of two of them, were coming on the vessel to work as leather finishers for R. G. Solomon in Newark, N. J., at $10 per week.

He also discovered that a man with a black band around his arm was to meet them.

Inspector Freund was sent abord when the Werkendam arrived with a black band around his arm, and the men fell into the trap.

There were four, who gave their names as Jacob Haffner, John Fuhry and wife, Carl Diebert and Christopher Gebel and wife.

Their passage had been paid and each had received ten marks.

TIP-O-TIP AGAIN.

He Gives Himself Up in Cincinnati.

The Police Take His Photographs and Warn Him Never to Return to the City Again.

Cincinnati, Aug. 29.—Chief of Detectives Hazen's office was for 10 minutes Saturday transformed into a lecture hall.

The attraction was Tip-o-Tip, the pretended Zulu missionary and fake son of King Cetewayo, who had been brought in to be registered.

Tip-o-Tip was footsore and weary and he had cut the tops of his shoe uppers off to save his swollen pedal extremities. He has had a hard time since he disappointed the audience at Walnut Hills Methodist church and took up his tramp across the country.

In almost every town he struck he was arrested, and held until telegraphing to and fro satisfied the authorities that no charge is pending against him anywhere.

It will be remembered that his game was to procure invitations, through his bogus letters, to the homes of ministers and church members. He would then inform his pals, two sharp crooks, of the lay of the land, and they would burglarize the house.

He stoutly maintained that he was born in South Africa near Cape Town, and was brought to America by Dr. Johnson. In his grip were his fantastic stag costumes and his fierce black wig.

His natural hair he has blondined, but he claims that it was yellowed by the sun's fierce rays. He weighs 200 pounds, and claims to be only 18.

Detectives Crawford and Witte photographed him and took his measurements by the Bertillion system, after which he was warned by Chief Dietsch to leave the city and never return.

MUST LEAVE THE ORDER.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Aug. 29.—There is considerable excitement among railroad employes here over the order of President McLeod, issued by him to-day to the effect that all employes of the Lehigh Valley and Central Railroad of New Jersey must sever connections with all labor organizations. There is considerable talk of striking.

SWINDLED GUESTS.

Hamilton, O., Aug. 29.—Rudolph Theim, landlord of the St. Clair hotel, caused the arrest of Homer Nester, charging him with embezzling $25. Guests would pay Nester and he would tell them they had not paid. Nester is at present a bartender here.

A TOWN WIPED OUT.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 29.—The town of Mozir, on the River Pripets, about 146 miles from Minsk, has been destroyed by fire. Mozir has a population of about 5,000, nearly all of whom have been made homeless and the misery among them is described as appalling.

SOME WERE ALIVE.

Rescue of a Portion of the Miners Entombed by the Explosion.

London, Aug. 29.—Forty-three of the men imprisoned by the explosion in the Parkslip mine at Aberkensfig have been found to be alive. Thirty-five of them have been taken out; the other eight were too weak to be moved and are still below. For the remaining 100 miners there is no hope. Home Secretary Asquith arrived at Aberkensfig to-day on a relief train.

The mayor has undertaken the raising of a fund for the families left destitute by the loss of the fathers or brothers in the accident.

Of the eight men who were too weak to be removed from the mine six have recovered and the other two have died.

INJURED AT CHURCH.

Three Persons Seriously Burned.

Forestville, Mich., Aug. 29.—Three worshipers in the Roman Catholic church here yesterday were badly burned by a fire that completely destroyed the edifice. They are:

Tillie Gustin, fatally.
William Grant, seriously.
Mrs. James Armstrong, seriously.

The three were kneeling at the altar at the time the fire broke out in the basement beneath them, and in the panic that ensued were knocked down, trampled on and burned. They were rescued with difficulty. No cause is known for the blaze, as there was no fire of any kind in the building and had not been for weeks. The loss of the structure is $3,500, partly insured.

THREE DROWNED.

San Francisco, Aug. 29.—A collision in Frisco bay yesterday resulted in the drowning of three men. The ship Alameda, from Philadelphia, after a voyage of 233 days, was being towed in when she collided with the local schooner Maid of Orleans. Capt. Charles Trainer, the negro cook and a sailor of the schooner were swept off by the ship's boom and drowned.

HEAVY RAIN.

Fargo, N. D., Aug. 29.—Rain has been falling here for 24 hours and as yet there are no indications of a cessation. Farmers are alarmed at the situation, for grain that is uncut will be badly damaged. A miniature tornado that accompanied the storm when it commenced, about 10 o'clock last night, lodged much wheat.

DISINHERITED.

Columbus, O., Aug. 29.—The will of D. H. Kenyon, of Waldo, drawn after he had been mortally wounded by his son George, has just been filed in the Marion county probate court. Though Kenyon forgave his son before he died, the will disinherits him.

ENGLAND'S TRADE.

Free Trade the Means of Building It Up.

The Cobden Club Takes Important Action and Will Force the Fight Hereafter.

London, Aug. 29.—The recent protectionist utterances of Lord Salisbury have infused new life into the Cobden club, and the organization is now preparing to enter upon another crusade against the cause which its namesake battled in the early forties.

At the annual meeting of the club which has just come to a close, the secretary presented the report of the executive committee for the past year.

A large part of the report consisted of an argument against the assertions made by Lord Salisbury in his speech at Hastings. The secretary asserted that England's trade with France, at which country the threats of retaliation were directed, was large and growing, that the exports were larger than the imports, and that free trade was the best weapon with which to fight the French policy of protection.

It was further stated that retaliation on one side leads to a similar course on the other, and instead of leading to reciprocity, would add to the strength of the protectionist walls.

The club is circulating an immense amount of free trade literature, and is using every effort to forestall any movement looking toward the restoration of England's protective policy.

INCIDENT OF THE WAR.

Interesting Meeting Arrainged for Two Men

Who Battled on Opposite Sides During the Recent Bloody Rebellion.

Wooster, Aug. 29.—Dr. J. D. Robison has accepted an invitation to be the guest of Mr. J. E. Hanger, of Washington, D. C., during the national encampment of the G. A. R. at that place next month.

The friendship between Mr. Hanger and Dr. Robison is the outgrowth of an incident of the rebellion which is of great interest, and the acceptance of the invitation goes to show that the veterans of the blue and those of the gray have indeed shaken hands and forgotten the horrors of war.

Mr. Hanger, it has been proven, was the first soldier on either side to have a limb amputated, and Dr. Robinson has the distinction of having performed the operation.

At the breaking out of the war Dr. Robison was surgeon of the Sixteenth Ohio, in the three months' service, there being one company in that organization from Wayne county, officered by Capt. G. W. Bailey, First Lieutenant A. Wiley, and Lieutenant Cushman Cunningham. Mr. Hanger was a confederate soldier.

On the morning of June 3, 1861, the citizens of Philipi, Barbour county, W. Va., and the confederate forces stationed there were awakened by the boom of cannon and to a realization of the fact that the war had begun in earnest. A federal battery, under Capt. Mott, consisting of two six-pound brass pieces, had been planted about 2 o'clock that morning on the hill overlooking the village and had opened fire.

The first two shots were canister and were aimed at the Churchville and Rockbridge cavalry camps, which were on the eastern bank of the river and directly opposite the battery. The third was a solid six-pound shot and aimed at a stable fifty or sixty yards east of the camps in which a number of confederate cavalry had been sleeping, Mr. Hanger being one of them.

He had passed the night in the loft with a brother and some friends and while coming out at the alarm was wounded in the left leg, just under the knee, by the solid shot, which struck the ground some distance off, ricocheted and struck the stable immediately at the side of the door and about twelve or fourteen inches above the floor, wounding him, and after having passed through several stalls fell inside.

This identical ball, which was probably the first solid shot fired in Virginia during the war and certainly caused the first amputation of the war, was afterwards picked up by the federal soldiers and handed to Capt. Mott and by him to Mr. Hanger, who has it now in his possession. After being wounded Mr. Hanger took refuge in the loft, where he was found by the federal soldiers and Dr. Robison called.

Upon an examination it became apparent that to save the man's life it would be necessary to remove the injured member an dbeing too weak from loss of blood to be moved he was placed on a door and Dr. Robison, assisted by Dr. Thornborne, amputated the leg just above the knee.

After the operation he was taken to a small house in the village and remained under Dr. Robison's care for the next two days, when the latter was called back to Grafton to attend Col. Kelly, who had been wounded in the same engagment.

Being only 18 years of age and the amputation well done, the wound healed rapidly and in less than four weeks he was walking on crutches. In August he was sent to Columbus, O., as a prisoner of war and was shortly thereafter exchanged and in due time reached his home in the country, six miles from Staunton, eastern Virginia, where he soon made himself a wooden leg—the first wooden leg worn by a confederate.

This fact was published in the papers at the time and it was not long before orders began to come in from others who had fared as badly as himself. He made quite a number. At the close of the war he went to Richmond to fill a contract with the state to furnish artificial limbs to all Virginia's disabled soldiers. To-day Mr. Hanger is a wealthy manufacturer in that business in Washington.

MET IN VIENNA.

International Grain and Seed Market Opened.

Vienna, Austria, Aug. 29.—The International Grain and Seed Market was opened to-day with a large representation from American as well as European countries. The proceedings were opened with a conference in the great hall of the Agricultural Bourse.

An immense amount of statistical material has been sent in for the consideration of the delegates, and to-morrow reports will be presented giving estimates of the harvests of 1892 in the United States, Canada, Russia, India and other grain-producing countries.

Besides the business program elaborate arrangements have been made for the entertainment of the visitors, and the commission on amusements will open a series of night festivals this evening.

HE HAD A CLOSE CALL.

Gilbert Rice Relates His Experience in Tennessee.

He Was Nearly Killed By the Miners.

He Had Been Taken for a Spy and the Penalty was Death, But He Escaped It.

New York, Aug. 29.—Gilbert G. Rice, the man whose sufferings at the hands of a mob of Tennessee miners did so much in the recent strike to turn sentiment against the strikers, was at the Grand Central depot yesterday afternoon. To a reporter Mr. Rice gave a description of the thrilling scene in which he so narrowly escaped death.

"About a month ago I visited Altamont, Tenn., to purchase land. I determined upon a piece of forest between the North Carolina & St. Louis railroad and the Elk river.

"I climbed the side of a mountain, blazing the trees along the route. On my return I lost my way. It was nearly dusk when I heard voices ahead of me. I peered through an opening and saw a group of miners talking with two men with demijohns.

"I saw that it was a secret meeting of some sort and I thought it wise to get away quickly. But I stepped on a twig which cracked and in a moment they were upon me. From their conversation I found that they were a band of strikers who had come into the forest to negotiate with illicit distillers for a supply of liquor.

"The miners were for killing me at once, but moonshiners protested, saying it would only bring down on them the wrath of the government.

"I was kept a prisoner several days in hopes that I would give come details of the convict camp. I frankly admit that I lied about the matter and gave much pretended information in exchange for food.

"Cross-examination elicited the fact that I had never visited the convict camp and the miners determined to make an example of me. A meeting was held and the most painful death was discussed.

"The meeting was held under an old freight car that had been sidetracked on a steep incline and its presence offered a suggestion that was quickly acted upon.

"It was decided to tie me by the neck to one end of the lariat and fasten the other end to the car and then set the car rolling down the grade.

"The decision was quickly carried out. The noose was drawn around my neck and the brakes loosened. One of the miners dropped the noose from my neck to my waist.

"As the car started the lariat straightened out and I took a step forward, then another and another, until I found it difficult to keep up.

"The sides of the track were lined with a jeering mob of miners. At a curve in the road I was lost sight of. There was a sudden turn as the car flew around and at the end of the taut lariat I felt myself flying through space. I had gone off on a tangent and the rope near the car struck a telegraph pole. The rope wound itself rapidly around the pole. There was a sharp report as the lariat parted and the car went on.

"Hours later I revived and got free from the lariat which had torn the flesh about my loins into shreds. Two ribs were broken and I was bruised all over. I found a squatter's hut and two days later was in Knoxville. I have been very ill ever since. My weight has fallen from 205 pounds three weeks ago to 150 now and the shock has turned my hair white."

SOCIAL SCIENCE.

Annual Session Convenes in Saratoga.

Saratoga, N. Y., Aug. 29.—The annual session of the Social Science congress opened here to-day. The Social Science association is one of the largest and best known bodies in the country for the study and discussion of social and economic subjects, and the deliberations are being participated in by men who have for years contributed to the success of the organization, prominent among them being President H. L. Wayland, of Philadelphia, Dr. Andrew D. White, Prof. Francis Wayland, and Mr. F. B. Sanborn. The congress will remain in session until Sept. 3rd.

"YOU ARE A LIAR."

Boss Bonner and Boss Squire In the Ring.

Interesting Row Among the Republican Leaders.

Bonner Flings the Statutes of Ohio at Squire's Head But Takes Poor Aim—Squire Repeats the Compliment.

There was a regular Sullivan-Corbett seance at the Toledo republican headquarters Saturday afternoon.

The singular proceedings of the republican central committee at its all-day session Saturday is published elsewhere.

When the good and faithful like W. I. Squire, C. P. Griffin, T. H. Tracy, Kent Hamilton, et al., were locked out from the committee rooms there were evidences of a storm.

It was generally understood that during the recess the postoffice people had fixed "the scheme" and the committee would see that it went through.

Just what the scheme was no one except the favored few knew until the committee had reported.

It was a cut and dried affair and while leaning towards the Baker law system gives the postoffice people full power and control of contests at and following the primaries.

The committee, as stated elsewhere, had adjourned to an upper chamber and went into executive session.

It was after 4 o'clock when the committee had its report ready.

Col. Bonner was sitting signing the report as chairman when W. I. Squire entered. Looking at the document which Secretary Merrill held in his hand, Squire exclaimed:

"What in thunder does that mean?" pointing to the paragraph which gives the board of supervisors such power. "You don't mean to say you are going to spring anything like that on us. It's a —— funny piece of business to give the chairman and secretary of the county committee full charge of the primaries."

"It doesn't," replied Col. Bonner. "If you read it you'll see that it requires a third member of the committee to constitute the board."

"A third member," sneered Squire, waxing furious. "It is a swindle, Bonner, and I tell you that I for one won't stand it. There is too much Tammany about it to suit me."

Col. Bonner attempted to explain the situation, but Mr. Squire would not have it.

"It is illegal all the way through," he exclaimed. "Merrill has no right on this committee; his term as representative from the Fourth ward having expired long ago."

The more Squire talked the hotter he grew and at last the lie was passed.

"Do you mean to call me a liar?" said Chairman Bonner, jumping to his feet.

"Yes, I say you are a liar, when ——"

Col. Bonner reached for the irate Fourth warder, but friends stepped between.

Squire drew back a step and peeling off his coat, made an attempt to reach Bonner, but was again frustrated.

"I'll show him the sort of a man I am," he exclaimed, excitedly.

Bonner at last had gotten his ire up and he was furious at the insults flung at him.

Grasping a heavy volume of the revised statutes of Ohio, which lay on the table, Bonner flung the legal missive with all his might, but it went wide of the mark and missed Squire's head by fully a foot.

Squire in turn caught up the book and flung it with all his might at Bonner. If it had hit where it was aimed it is probable that the republican county central committee would be hunting another chairman.

Fortunately, Bonner ducked in time to save his head.

The greatest excitement now prevailed and members were standing on chairs and tables watching the outcome of the fight.

Both men glared at each other and Squire at last breaking away from those who held him, made a rush for Bonner, when the latter grasped a chair in self-defense.

There was murder in the air and the friends of both men saw it. Rushing in they pulled the men apart.

Mr. Squire was finally induced to leave the room.

"I wish you to understand," he said as he left and shaking his hand at Bonner, "that no board of supervision will run the Fourth ward primaries if I can help it."

The row was the sole talk among politicians on the street Saturday evening and the bad blood that has thus been brought to the surface may find an exit before the trouble is settled.

GOBBLED THE ROADS.

Elkins-Weidner-Yerkes are in a Combine.

They Have Got Control of the Valuable Manhattan "L" Road in New York.

New York, Aug. 29.—The World says it was reported last night that the Elkins-Weidner-Yerkes syndicate has gobbled up the Jay Gould holdings in the Manhattan elevated railway company and that the triumvirate will demand three seats in the company's directorate.

Also that the control of this city's elevated railroad will pass into the hands of the syndicate which will immediately make preparations to extend the lines beyond the Harlem and improve the down town service.

VETERAN MISSIONARY DEAD.

Rev. Howland, for Half a Century a Worker in Ceylon.

Springfield, Mass., Aug. 29.—A cable message announces the death Friday in Jaffna, Ceylon, of Rev. William Ware Howland, for nearly 50 years missionary of the American board on that island. Mr. Howland was born in West Brookfield, Mass., in 1817, graduated from Amherst college in 1841, and was ordained for the work in 1845, after completing a course in Union theological seminary. Three of his children became missionaries, the oldest, William M. Howland, at Madeira, and died while in this county in 1877. The second, Rev. Samuel Howland, is president of Jaffna college, Jaffna, Ceylon. The only daughter, Miss Susan Reed Howland, is principal of a young woman's seminary in Jaffna, while Rev. John Howland is missionary of the American board in Mexico. Mr. Howland was the oldest missionary in that small field and had not visited his native country since 1861. He lived to see the Jaffna mission grow until it has nine self-supporting churches and 2,700 members, while there are 135 mission schools and 8,500 pupils.

JONN ON DRESS PARADE.

He Will Show Himself to the Public.

To Go Through a Whole Days Training.

Notes of the Turf—Doings in Ball Circles—All the Gossip Concerning Out-Door Sport.

Brooklyn, N. Y., Aug. 29.—John L. Sullivan will show himself to the general public for the first time since he went into training, at the benefit to be tendered him this evening.

The affair will take place at the Clermont Avenue rink, and Sullivan will spar four rounds each with ack Ashton and Leonard Tracy.

Sullivan has also made arrangements for a bog show to be given at Madison Square garden, New York, to-morrow afternoon and evening.

In the afternoon he will go through an entire day's training—punching the bag, running, swimming and skipping the rope - and sporting men who have any doubts about his condition can satisfy themselves by personal observations.

At this performance no women will be admitted. At the evening entertainment, however, which will consist of two bouts between Sullivan and Ashton, and Sullivan and Joe Lannon, the fair ones will eb welcome.

New York, Aug. 29.—Now that the preparatory work is all over and Sullivan and Corbett are in the pink of condition for their great prize fight, which is to take place in New Orleans September 7, the excitement will be intense until the battle takes place. Both pugilists will be in town to-day, where they will remain until they leave on their respective trains for the battle grounds. Sullivan will show at the Clermont Avenue rink, in Brooklyn, to-night and it is thought that the building will not be able to accommodate the large hrong that will crowd there to see him.

Corbett, on the other hand, will give a double-headed entertainment at the Madison Square garden, this city. The afternoon entertainment will consist chiefly in exrilting his style of training to the public, going through the entire program, which will doubtless prove interesting, as the average person has not the slightest idea of the tremendous amount of laborious exercise he is compelled to undergo in order to reduce its flesh and harden him up for the ordeal of a prize fight.

In the evening the entertainment will consist chiefly of boxing, wrestling, and an exhibition of hand ball playing between him and Lawler, the Irish champion. It pretty generally believed that both these entertainments will be largely attended, especially the one given in the afternoon, as the men who intend going to see Sullivan in the evening will no doubt go to see Corbett in the afternoon in order to draw compatisons between tre respective conditions of the two men.

The sporting public is somewhat anxious to know what the outcome will be of the meeting between Jim Corbett and Dominick McCaffrey. The men were never friends, but since McCaffrey has been airing his opinions so freely about the Corbett-Sullivan fight in the daily papers the feeling between the two pugilists has developed into a very bitter hatred. As an instance of how opinions differ, Sullivan a few weeks ago was regretting the fact of not having a better man to meet than Corbett, as he would be dragging his friends way down to New Orleans to see a comparatively quick and one-sided fight, and it would be over in a few punches, that would scarcely pay them for a long journey.

Corbett, on the other hand, was delighted by the compliment Sullivan paid him in training harder for this fight than he ever trained in his life before. Corbett feels just as confident that he is going to defeat Sullivan as Sullivan does that he will have a "soft snap," with Corbett. Jim smiled pleasantly to-day and said: "I see that Sullivan is taking precautions, according to a paragraph relative to his fighting shoes."

The great thickness of the sole and unusual height of the heel of these shoes are intended to raise Sullivan from the floor and put him nearer on an equality with Corbett in heighth than he would otherwise be.

With another pleasant smile and wink of his eye Jim said: "It is evident that if Sullivan thinks he is to have such an easy time his friends are not quite so sure of his soft snap, and are doing everything in their power to further his chances of victory."

Sheepshead Bay Race Track, Aug. 29.—The great Futurity has been run and won by a horse that under ordinary circumstances would not have been permitted to leave his stable. Morello, beneath clouded skies, before only 10,000 spectators and over a track deep in mud captured the great event by two lengths from August Belmont's Lady Violet.

While the winner stood at the post before the race had started, saliva fell from his nostrils to the rack in profuse quantities, and he fifty or a hundred people who had journeyed to the post to see the 17 contestants begin the Futurity struggle thought that Trainer Frank Van Ness mus be crazy to send his colt to the post in such condition. They were amazed beyond description to learn, upon their return to the judges' stand, that this same colt had won the $75,000 prize by two lengths from Lady Violet.

After 10 minutes' delay in getting the field bunched, Starter Rowe dipped his flag in a good start with Lovelace in first place on the rail. He was outspeeded in the opening six lengths by the Belladona colt, on which Hamilton was endeavoring to make a runaway race. At the bend into the home stretch proper, or at the end of three furlongs, Morello was seen to be breaking through from the bunch. At the half-mile post he was at the Belladonna colt's neck and Hamilton began to whip Keene's colt in a desperate but futile effort to retain first place. Nearing the the last furlong post Hayward's whip went up in the air and came down with vicious severity on Morello's side. He then took a line in each hand and began to tide the game son of Eolus, who was right at home in the mud his daddy loved so well. From that point to he finish it was no race at all, Morello easily outspeeding his opponents and winning, eased up in the last dozen strides, by two lengths, in 1:12 1-5, corking good time considering the heavy condition of the track.

As a great horse race it was a failure, all the glory going to the winner, for his gameness in running such a grand race in the face of his severe attack of influenza.

Just before the race the trainer of Morello was in a state of mind. Both Fitzpatrick and Murphy had promised to ride his colt, but at the last moment neither could obtain the necessary permission from their respective trainers. Fortunately Billy Hayward was disengaged, and he accepted the mount, for which he will receive $7,000. Fitzpatrick and Murphy are disgusted.

Fourth race, the Futurity, about $75,000. Futurity course: Morello first, Violet second, Belladonna, colt, third. Time—1:12 1-5.

The date of the McCaffrey-Corbett fight will be fixed to-night. Corbett is confident he can knock McCaffrey out in four rounds.

New Orleans, Aug. 29.—Each day that passes brings the great fights nearer and the enthusiasm of the sports increases with the flight of time. The orders for reserved seats for all of the contests continue to pour in from North, east and west and Capt. Williams, of the Olympic club is busy from early morning until late at night answering telegrams and assigning seats to the applicants. Co. Bob Garrett of the Queen & Crescent route receives about $500 daily from Cincinnati to pay fo rreserved seats for the triple events.

The betting has started off at a brisk pace. Harry W. Donald, of New York, bet $10,000 to $6,000 that Sullivan will defeat Corbett. Jimmy Griffin, who will second Skelly in the coming contest with Dixon, arrived last night. He spent this morning calling on old friends and left for Bay St. Louis this evening. Griffin is the picture of good health and is said to be spoiling for a fight.

Jimmy Carroll and his wife got in from Bay St. Louis last night for the purpose of escorting Griffin to the bay this evening. Carroll reports everything all right at Robertson's. Skelly and McAuliffe are both training faithfully, he says, and will not disappoint their friends on the night of their contest.

TO THE GRAND ARMY.

Important Action Taken in Washington.

Reunions to be Held in a Novel Manner.

Arrangements Being Made to Make the Encampment One of the Most Successful Yet Held.

Washington, Aug. 29.—The committee on reunions for the twenty-eighth national encampment of the G. A. R. has decided to group all the reunions together on the mall known as the White Lot, south of the white house. Around the ellipse will be stationed headquarters' tents for each corps, for the navy, ex-prisoners of war and other organizations. In the rear of these tents will be others for each brigade in the corps. There will be large tents for the reunions of corps. The following has been the arrangement into corps for reunion purposes:

First Corps—All those who served in the first corps at any time from its organization in March, 1862, and while it formed part of the second corps in the last year of the war.

Second Corps—All those who served in the second corps at any time.

Third Corps—All those who served in the corps at any time, including the time it formed part of the fifth corps.

Fourth Corps—All members of fourth corps of the Army of the Cumberland at any time, including those who had previously served in the twentieth and twenty-first corps of that army prior to its consolidation into the fourth corps.

Fifth Corps—All who served in that organization at any time during its history.

Sixth Corps—All who served in that corps at any time.

Seventh Corps—All who served west of the Mississippi and north of the Red rivers.

Eighth Corps—Including that corps and the army of West Virginia.

Ninth Corps—All who served in that corps at any time.

Tenth Corps—All who served in that corps or the department of the south.

Eleventh Corps—All who served in that corps.

Twelfth Corps—All who served in that corps.

Thirteenth Corps—All who served in the corps as organized Oct. 24, 1862, or at any time thereafter.

Fourteenth Corps—All who served in that corps as organized Sept. 22, 1862, or any time thereafter.

Fifteenth Corps—All who served in that corps as organized Dec. 18, 1862, or at any time thereafter.

Sixteenth Corps—All who served in that corps as organized December 18, '62, or at any time thereafter.

Assignment of Unattached Regiments.

All the regiments which served in the Army of the Tennessee and were not definitely assigned to any corps will be assigned to the Sixteenth corps. This includes all the 100-day regiments called out in '64 to do garrison duty and to protest lines of communication.

Seventeenth Corps—All who belonged to the corps as organized December 18, '62, or at any time thereafter.

Eighteenth Corps—All who belonged to the corps as organized December 24, '62, or at any time thereafter. This includes Casey's division of the Fourth corps and Peck's division of the Seventh corps of the Army of the Potomac and all the troops in the department of Virginia and North Carolina.

Nineteenth Corps—All who belonged to the corps as organized January 5, '63, or at any time thereafter. This includes all who served at any time in the department of the Gulf.

The Twentieth corps will mean the corp as organized April 4, '64, by consolidating the Eleventh and Twelfth corps, and includes all those who served in that corps thereafter.

The place of the Twenty-first corps has been taken by the provisional corps, Army of the Cumberland, which will include all regiments in the Army of the Cumberland not definitely assigned to any corps.

Twenty-second Corps—This will include all troops occupying the defenses of Washington and all regiments, batteries, etc., of the Army of the Potomac which were not assigned to corps.

Twenty-third Corps—This includes all who served in that corps and the Army of the Ohio except the members of the Ninth corps.

Twenty-fifth corps—This will include all who served in the corps as organized December 3, '64, or at any time thereafter. Also all colored troops east of the Allegheny mountains.

The colored troops serving in the country between the Mississippi river and the Allegheny mountains will form an organization called the "Colored Troops of the Military Division of the Mississippi."

The cavalry corps, Army of the Potomac, includes all the cavalry in the Army of the Potomac.

Cavalry corps, western army, includes all the cavalry in the armies of the Ohio, Cumberland and Tennessee.

Navy includes all who served afloat, either as sailors, marines or in the Mississippi marine brigade.

Artillery corps, Army of the Potomac—This will include all those in the Army of the Potomac who served in the artillery.

Engineers—This will include all those who served in the engineers, signal service, as scouts or spies, as telegraphers on military railroads, etc. Each of these services will be grouped together under its own chairman.

Prisoners of war—All soldiers, sailors or marines who fell into the hands of the enemy.

The Fourth corps of the Army of the Potomac, the Seventh corps, commanded by Gens. Wool and Dix, and the Twentieth and Twenty-first corps of the Army of the Cumberland, were unavoidably ignored. All the regiments in the old Fourth and Seventh corps went into other corps of the Armies of the Potomac and James, and nearly all of those in the Fourteenth and Twenty-first corps became part of the newly created Fourth corps. All will, therefore, be fully represented.

The ground will be dedicated under the name of Grand Army Place on Monday, September 18. The president of the United States, the vice president, the supreme court, cabinet officers, committees representing the senate and house of representatives, the major-general commanding the army, the rear admiral of the navy will be present with the commander-in-chief of the Grand Army. There will be a grand parade prior to the ceremonies. The regular soldiers and sailors stationed in the vicinity of Washington, the District militia and the Department of the Potomac and Sons of Veterans will appear in line.

The folowing assignments for reunions have been made by the committee on reunions for the army corps composing the Army of the Tennessee:

Thirteenth A. C.—Thursday, 2:30 p. m., in Mead tent.

Fifteenth A. C.—Thursday, 2:30 p. m., in Sherman tent.

Sixteenth A. C.—Tuesday, 2:30 p. m., in Thomas tent.

Seventeenth A. C.—Wednesday, 2:30 p. m., in Sherman tent, and for the reunion of the Army of the Tennessee in the Grant tnt on Thursday at 3 p. m. This tent will have a capacity of 4,000 persons, and if the day is fair the sides will be raised so that as many can attend the meeting as can come within hearing of the speakers. It is believed that this army meeting will be one of the largest gatherings of the occasion. The committees of all these army corps are co-operating to make all these meetings a grand success.

STAR CHAMBER SESSION

Of the Republican Central Committee.

The Good and True are Invited to Attend and Are Then Barred Out—The Republican Convention Sept. 10.

What will undoubtedly prove to be the most interesting political contest ever held in this city or section was inaugurated at the meeting of the republican county central committee held Saturday.

The Bee published the facts up to the time of adjournment Saturday noon. A number of prominent gentlemen had been invited to give their views of the Baber law at the afternoon session.

In face of the fact that these gentlemen were present as per request the committee on reassembling at 1:30 immediately went into executive session, and consequently moved up stairs.

The visitors were at first dumfounded and afterwards, on realizing that it was a preconcerted and premeditated move, were indignant.

Col. Bonner had a trim little document in his hand which he said would settle the primary matter, but he would not reveal its contents until the committee was in executive session.

The visitors were at first inclined to take "the lack of confidence" good naturedly, and C. P. Griffin was unanimously elected chairman of an impromptu meeting to consider the matter.

"It is an unprecedented proceeding in the history of Lucas county republican politics," Mr. Tracy remarked in moving that Negley D. Cochran act as secretary.

The preliminary work was transacted amid considerable laughter and good natured comment.

It was decided either to go into executive session or else that the Bee reporter—the only democrat present—be made an honorary member of the republican party.

The latter course was agreed to and the Bee representative was allowed to remain, agreeing to be a good republican in everything except voting the republican ticket.

Mr. J. S. Southard moved that it was the sense of the meeting that the action of he county central committee, in going into executive session, was not expressive of a full confidence in the integrity and intelligence of those present.

The motion was carried by an unanimous vote and, on motion, the honorary member was instructed to find out what specific kind of poker the central committee was of poker the central committee was then then engaged in up stairs.

On motion it was unanimously decided to request the county central committee to formulate a special iron-clad system of holding republican primaries in the Second ward.

The meeting adjourned to witness a clever game betwetn County Commissioner Engelhart and several others.

About 4 o'clock the committee got through with its labor, and at last Col. Bonner's little document was given to the public.

The committee decided to hold the county convention at Druid hall, Saturday, September 10.

The main points in the new system of holding republican primaries as set forth by Col. Bonner are as follows:

"For the purpose of directing the primaries, a board of supervisors is the appointed, to consist of the chairman, the secretary and one additional member to be elected by the republican county central committee:

It may be all right, but it looks as if the system gave two men supreme power to manipulate things.

Brussels, Aug. 29.—A disastrous accident occurred about 9 o'clock to-day on the railway near Brussels.

The express train from Ostend to Brussels was near Dieghem and Schaerbeck, the latter place properly a suburb of Brussels, inhabited by the wealthy class, when the ordinary accommodation train from Brussels to Antwerp came along.

The express train was most severely damaged. A first-class carriage of the express was crushed to pieces and a number of those in the carriage were killed or injured. The passengers in this carriage were mostly persons of good position and distinction, three of whom were killed.

A. Jeslein, consul-general at Brussels for the Orange free states, was among the many injured and it is feared that several of the injured will die.

The locomotive of the express was also badly damaged in the collision and the fireman and engineer were crushed to death.

Other first-class carriages were damaged and the second and third-class coaches were uninjured.

News was at once sent to Brussels and a train loaded with railway officials and workmen was forwarded to the scene.

The dead were brought to the city and the injured attended to on the spot, the more severely hurt being conveyed to their homes or to the hospitals. An inquiry has been instituted as to the cause of the disaster.

King Leopold, of Belgium, was on the next train from Ostend, following that which was wrecked. Owing to the blocking of the line by the wreck his majesty had to leave the train in which he was traveling and take another route into Brussels.

They came from his famous Sugar Creek farm on which there is an abundance and variety of fruit. Colonel DeWolf is a northern man who came to Georgia several years ago from Ohio and settled near Madison. THREE AND ONE-EIGHTH

The Per Centage Offered for the City's Money—Wonderful Advance.

Notwithstanding the plentiness of money, the banks are still after it, and the extraordinary bids offered this noon for the handling of the city finances punctuates the fact.

The board of repository met at Mayor Emmick's office at noon to receive bids for the city money. There were present Mayor Emmick, President Coleman of the common council, and City Solicitor Read.

Following were the bids presented:

Second National Bank...	3 1-8 per cent.
Northern National Bank..	2 1-10 " "
Union Savings Bank....	1 3-4 " "

On motion of Mr. Read the Second National was awarded the money.

This is a wonderful advance over former years. In 1888 the Second National secured it for 1-4 of one per cent. Then a law was passed making 1 per cent. the least that could be offered; so in 1890 the Second National secured it for 1 per cent.

RIOTERS.

Fremont, O., Aug. 29.—The long distance telephone line employes and Poles had a big fight last night outside the city limits. Several heads were smashed and broken and one woman was tied up by the hair. Police are now after the leaders.

The emperor of Annam is only 12 years old, and an inveterate cigarette smoker. He is a studious and serious little boy, with a lingering fondness for the childish toys that the French government sends him for amusement.

THE NORTHERN MUTUAL.

Case Filed to Show That It Is Out of Ohio.

Columbus, O., Aug. 29.—(Special.)—The attorney general, at the instance of Supt. of Insurance Kinder, instituted proceedings in quo warranto in supreme court this morning to oust the Northern Mutual Fire association, of Toledo, from its charter, alleging the following facts:

The company has only a nominal headquarters in Ohio, being in fact operated from Chicago by J. P. Elderkin, its general manager.

It has taken into membership persons residing outside of Ohio and written risks on property located in other states and terriories. It has transacted business on the joint stock, or cash plain; has failed and refused to file its annual statement with the superintendent of insurance, and has kept no books or records of its proceedings.

THIS FALL

We will show a far larger line of dress goods, silks and trimmings than ever before. Go to Lamsons' THIS FALL.

Are you at all anxious to save money? If so, trade at LAMSONS'.

WE HAVE ALWAYS tried to sell good goods, and sell them at just as low prices as possible. We feel that our efforts have been appreciated by the good people of Toledo. THIS FALL we shall try to outdo ourselves.

TOLEDO MARKETS.

The receipts of wheat to-day at Minneapolis and Duluth are 180,454 bushels and at five other western points 1,050,112 buhsels, aggregate 1,230,566 bushels. On the corresponding Monday in 1891 the receipts were 1,439,625 bushels, but 587,446 bushels of it was northwest wheat, leaving 852,579 bushels from the five other points, compared with 1,050,112 bushels to-day. The export clearances Saturday were 276,718 bushels and flour to an aggregate of 300,000 bushels. English markets are firmer for wheat and steady for corn.

The Markets To-day.

The visible supply of wheat increased last week 3,171,000 bushels, corn increased 329,000 bushels, oats increased 235,000 bushels. In the corresponding week in 1891 wheat increased 1,267,000 bushels, corn increased 1,404,000 bushels, oats increased 1,005,000 bushels. We call attention to our extracts herein from the Minneapolis "Record," which indicate that the northwest are not likely to starve.

The shipments from India last week equaled 600,000 bu. Previous week 3,0,-000 bu. Since April 1, the beginning of the crop year, 21,300,000 bu., compared with 20,750,000 bu. in the corresponding period in 1891.

The markets for wheat to-day have all been stronger and scored an advance. Firmer English markets, a threatened frost in the northwest, started prices, and the firmer price started the shorts to buying, and that is about all there is of it. There is a good deal of nervousness in the market in expectation of the Vienna congress report. It is quite generally expected that the report will estimate the world's production below that of 1891. Undoubtedly that is a correct expectation. Beerbohm estimated the crop of the world five weeks since at 40,000,000 to 50,000,000 less than last year. We shall be surprised if that estimate is largely increased.

The advance in wheat was 7-8c to 1c bu, but part of it was lost and at close prices were not much above Saturday.

Corn was also higher and closed with most of the advance gained.

In New York August wheat closed at 80 7-8c and September at 80 7-8c, a gain of 3-8c. September corn at 58 1-4c, a gain of 3-4c. September oats at 38 1-2, a loss of 1-4c.

In Chicago September wheat closed at 76c to 76 1-8c, a gain of 3-8c. September corn at 51 1-4c, a gain of 1-2c. September oats unchanged.

In Toledo, the trading in wheat has been moderately active, confined mostly to September and December futures. Opening prices were 1-4@1-2c higher, and the market gained 3-8@1-2c more, but lost part of it, closing August unchanged, September 3-8c and December 1-2c higher. On the call August sold at 78c. On the regular board August sold at 78 1-4@ 78 1-2c, and closed at 78 1-4c; September at 78@78 3-8c and closed at 78 1-8c; October at 78 5-8c; December at 80 3-4@ 81-1-4c, closing at 81c.

Cash wheat was in large demand: No. 2 soft sold at 78 1-4c to 78 1-2c, closing at 78 1-4c. No. 3 soft was largely dealt in, at 70c to 70 1-2c, and D. & M. and L. S. and 69 3-4c Wabash, closing at 69 1-2c to 70c. September sold at 70c and December at 73c. Sales of cash wheat 150,-000 bu. and closing prices were about 1-4c up. No. 4 soft, 63 1-2c; rejected No. 1 at 66c; No. 2 at 50c; smutty at 60c to 67c; No. 2 white at 74 1-2c. Corn: No. 2, 52c; No. 3, 51c. Rye: on the call No. 2 for September sold at 63 1-2c. On the board No. 2 for August at 64 1-2c; rejected, 46 1-2c.

Clover seed was firm and higher, with only light business reported. On the call October sold at $5.82 1-2 to $5.85. On the regular board October sold at $5.85 to $5.90; October No. 2 at $5.35; No. 2 for cash, $5.75, sample. At close the gain was partly lost. October sellers at $5.85; November, $5.75.

Before Levi P. Morton is entirely forgotten, mention occasionally that he honored himself by ruling against the force bill.

A "temperance" organ quotes from the Wine and Spirits Gazette the warning that "Bidwell's candidacy has but one object—the defeat of the republican nominee." And why shouldn't these organs play the same tune? And why shouldn't prohibitionists meet them with the same ammunition? The traffic in drink has steadily increased in the country during the thirty years of republican rule.

Newspaper editors and newspaper readers like pith and point. Perhaps no briefer or clearer statement of a man's political sentiments was ever made than the one which is contained in the opening paragraph of J. M. Barrie's "Auld Licht Idyls:"

"The first time I ever saw Lord Rosebery was in Edinburgh when I was a student, and I flung a clod of earth at him. He was a peer; those were my politics."

It will cost the United States over $3,000,000 to experiment with the eight-hour law this year. Therein lies one of the "economies" of this democratic house.—Republican Growler.

It needn't. The party which is so ready to go to England for its observations can learn, by a little intelligent investigation, how the eight-hour law works. It has been in practice over there in many lines of labor long enough to prove itself helpful or harmful. They have a fashion of enforcing law in the old country.

Dr. Talmage kindly described God for his English audience yesterday. The American god is something the fashion of the idol which Aaron made for the Israelites to worship, when Moses was up in the mountain and delayed to come down. With great consideration the doctor forbore to touch upon this point in his argument. In either case, he allowed that the wicked free traders of England and the divine protectionists of America worship one and the same God and therefore belong to one brotherhood. The debt of the nations to Dr. Talmage is very great.

To-day Oliver Wendell Holmes celebrated his eighty-third birthday anniversary. In 1829 Dr. Holmes graduated at Harvard. Of the 59 men who graduated at Harvard in 1829 but four besides Dr. Holmes are now living. They are Samuel Francis Smith, D. D., the author of the national hymn, "America," Dr. Edward L. Cunningham of Newport, Rev. Samuel May of Leicester and Charles S. Storer of Boston. These sent greeting to the genial doctor, and Whittier wrote, to his friend:

Beloved physician of an age of all!
When grave prescriptions fail,
Thy songs have cheer and healing for us all,
As David's had for Saul.

And to this the whole country will add: as many happy returns as the leniency of nature can possibly decree.

THE HARRISON MACHINE.

Never before, since the colonies were united under one form of general government, in all the history of the growth and decay of parties, has there been so thoroughly equipped and well-greased political machinery for the furtherance of party ends, as the republicans have gotten into operation during their long term of power. Every man who wants an office, under their administration, knows the motive power by which it must come. Every man who holds an office knows by virtue of what influence it will be continued to him. Every beneficiary of the high tariff for protection knows what returns he is obliged to make for the tribute that is decreed him. Every foreign minister who tramps back and forth from his post of duty to the campaign arena where the money lords sit in council, realizes that he must work for himself and his candidate at the same time, and contribute of his means as his benefits will permit. Every consul in a foreign city knows what kind of reports he must send in, to be distributed among the people to save his official head and his salary. And for the building and running of this expensive machinery, by and for the minority of the people, the majority foot the bills. And never before, in the history of the country except in war, have these bills mounted up with such fearful rapidity and to such alarming figures.

These are truths that the boldest of them openly exult in do not attempt to deny. Verily the conscientious voter must awake to the situation and think and act for himself. Farm owners, farm laborers, professional men and mechanics of of every class, should be figuring out these problems of profit and loss under their proper heads. "Who pays and who gets the lion's share." And by what nice manipulation does one class get all the oratory and palaver while the ducats are pouring into the coffers of another class?

Never before, in the history of the country, did a president sit with his hand on the wire and his foot on the lever to control his own nomination and his own campaign for re-election, as President Harrison has done and is doing. No tradesman at a bargain counter ever puzzled more cunningly over prices and placards, than the chief magistrate studies over his pile of possible promises and rewards, how they shall be put forth to bring him the surest returns. Shall this shameless exhibition, by any man or any party, be allowed to continue, is the question for voters to decide.

IOWA DEMOCRATS.

Boise, Idaho, Aug. 29.—The democratic state convention nominated John M. Burke of Shoshone county for governor, and J. W. Jones of Blackfoot for lieutenant-governor. Jones declined and Frank Hardison of Washington county was nominated. The ticket was completed as follows: Congressman, E. B. True; secretary of state, J. H. Wickersham; treasurer, Philip Rogan; auditor, J. W. McClure; attorney-general, W. T. Reeves; superintendent of public instruction, J. W. Fall; supreme judge, F. E. Ensign.

HARRISON NOT IN IT.

Clever Review of the Political Situation

As Seen by Captain P. H. Dowling in an Extensive Tour in the Northwest — It is Cleveland and Weaver.

Capt. P. H. Dowling, who has just returned from an extended summer outing on the upper lakes and throughout the northwest, has sanguine views of the chances for the democratic ticket this fall.

Speaking with a Bee this morning on the subject he said in reply to a query:

"Yes, I have met and talked with a large number of intelligent democrats and republicans from various sections of the country, whose opportunities have been good for obtaining public sentiment with reference to the presidential candidates and the issues which divide the political parties, and I am thoroughly of the opinion that President Harrison is practically out of the race. I have no doubt as to what the result in New York will be. Cleveland will certainly carry the state by a large majority, and I think he is quite certain to receive the votes of the electors of Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin and Iowa.

"Gen. Weaver is sure to carry Kansas by from 20,000 to 40,000. I think his party will also be victorious in Colorado, Nebraska, Wyoming and South Dakota, and possibly in other states. So you see the contest, if contest it be, is really between Cleveland and Weaver, as the election may possibly have to be decided by the house of representatives, and in that event each state will have one vote to be determined by the majority of the state delegation in congress. All over the country there is a spirit of dissatisfaction because of the effect of the republican tariff laws.

"Hundreds and thousands of honest thinking republicans who have for several years been dissatisfied with the evil results growing out of class legislation enacted at the dictation of republican party leaders will this year endeavor to correct these evils by voting for Grover Cleveland and good government."

WITH JUDAS ISCARIOT,

Glasgow Workmen Place Andrew Carnegie.

He Has Furnished the Laborers of the Land a Most Powerful Object Lesson.

London, Aug. 30.—The Trades Council of Glasgow at its last session in that city passed a remarkable resolution declaring that while they deplore the recent outrages at Pittsburg, and while sincerely sympathizing with the victims, they yet feel constrained to tender their thanks to Mr. Andrew Carnegie, and while enrolling his name on the roll of fame along with the names of Judas Iscariot and James Carey, to express their belief that he has been the means of providing the workmen of the world with the most powerful object lesson as to the relation of capital and labor which could possibly be given, and which would tend to make workmen think and act for themselves in the future.

THE COLONEL IS CONFIDENT.

He Says He Thinks Ohio Will Go Democratic by 20,000.

Springfield, Aug. 29.—Col. W. A. Taylor, the democratic candidate for secretary of state and the well known newspaper correspondent, was here this afternoon for a while en route home form Troy, where he spoke yesterday afternoon. He has already been in 20 of the 88 counties and claims that Ohio will go democratic this fall by 20,000 plurality. He bases this on four things, viz: First, A condition of things in Hamilton county similar to that in '82, which will cause the county to go democratic by 5,000; second, a widespread conversion of both wage workers and farmers to tariff reform ideas; third, bitterness caused by the Foraker-Sherman fight; fourth, force bill agitation. The colonel is conducting a gum shoe campaign and believes it a winner. He has a great deal to say about the force bill and argues that the young republicans themselves should defeat it, because it would increase federal patronage to such an extent as to make one man power almost unbreakable and consequently keep the young republicans in the background. The power of federal patronage was shown at Minneapolis when the whole country was enthusiastic for Blaine and at Columbus when Ohio was wild for Foraker for United States senator. On the other hand Foss Hayward, present sergeant-at-arms of the Ohio senate, and E. G. Coffin, ex-warden of the Ohio penitentiary, both leading republicans of the state, said if this was not a presidential year "Bill" Taylor would have a walkover, so great is his popularity.

The Health Department Takes Action to Prevent a Spread of Cholera.

The Sanitary Police Force Increased —The Alleys Must be Cleaned— Sewers to be Flushed.

A meeting of citizens and city officials was held at the mayor's office Saturday evening, for the purpose of discussing the possibility of cholera in Toledo, and exchanging views relative to preventing a spread of the disease, and to improve the sanitary conditions of the city.

Among those present were Mayor Emmick, Police Commissioners Waring, Stager, Potter and Doville, Chief of Police Raitz, Health Officer Fisher, Messrs. Walker, Armstrong, Maher and Miller.

Dr. Fisher gave a brief outline of the present sanitary condition of the city, stating that the health department has been handicapped in this work on account of the small force of sanitary policemen. He recommended the appointment of more men for 30 days at least. After considerable discussion the meeting adjourned until 9 o'clock this morning.

A special meeting of the police commissioners was held this morning, an action taken in accordance with the sentiment of the meeting Saturday night.

Health Officer Fisher's recommendation to increase the sanitary force was indorsed and the following names were approved: J. E. Thompson, Geo. McBride, Geo. Phflock, J. Stevens, Michael Quinlan, Thomas Daly, M. Gordon. The men will be on duty for 30 days and longer if necessary.

The street commissioner was directed to clean all alleys between Water street and Michigan street from Cherry street to Monroe street.

On motion of Mr. Stager, Health Officer Fisher was vested with full power to act under any emergency that may arise relative to contagion. He was also instructed to have every sewer in the city thoroughly cleaned by turning the hydrants into them.

AT THE THEATERS.

The Bicycle Comedy This Evening at Wheeler's.

The Pulse of New York at the People's—The Wonderland Opening—The Big Amusement Palace Ready to Receive the Public.

Another novelty in the comedy line will be presented at Wheeler's this evening when a bicycle comedy, Cupid's Chariot, will be seen here for the first time. From the cast it would be gathered that the performance would be first-class. Alice Evans heads the list. She is the charming little lady who introduced the song Mary and John. While there is a clever plot, plenty of good music, dancing, specialties, trick bicycle riding, etc., the principle event is the great bicycle race, one of the cleverest illusions placed upon the stage. It is said to be more realistic than the horse race in the County Fair. George Thatcher, the minstrel, and Henry J. Sayers, who managed Tuxedo last season are the proprietors.

At the People's.

This evening the realistic melodrama, The Pulse of New York, will open a week's engagement at the People's. The piece tells a thrilling story of every day life in the metropolis. Among the scenic effects are those of a steam pile driver in operation, an elevated railroad train and a fire scene in which a lady jumps from the window into a net below. The company is said to be a strong one.

The Wonderland Opening.

The Wonderland will open this evening. This most complete amusement enterprise has something within its doors that will reach everybody. There is the menagerie full of curios and animals, including a large family of monkeys for the children; the taxidermy and natural history departments for older heads; the Eden Musee wax works, taking up one entire floor, the museum with its collection of living freaks and other novelties, and the cosy theater where 600 people can be seated and witness a performance given by artists direct from New York, Chicago and San Francisco engagements. Binns and Burns who appear at the Wonderland this week were at Tony Pastor's theater all last week.

GOV. M'KINLEY'S ABSENCES.

Complications as a Result of His Prolonged Trips Outside the State.

Columbus, Aug. 29.—The almost continued absence from the state of Gov. McKinley is leading to many complications.

The governor has the habit of signing in blank applications for acknowledgements of requisitions for criminals and the clerks in the office pass on the sufficiency of the demands for the return of criminals.

To-day Attorney Cushing, of Cincinnati, came to the city for the purpose of collecting evidence to present to the courts showing the absence of Gov. McKinley when a requisition from the governor of Indiana for Wm. Gand was honored. The attorney states that Judge Wilson of Hamilton county, says if it is shown that Gov. McKinley was absent when the papers were issued he will release the prisoner, who is wanted at Richmond, Ind., for entering a dwelling and stealing a gold watch worth $175. There is no question but that the governor was absent.

In a similar case in this city recently Judge Pugh decided that the court could not go behind the governor's signature. The governor has been absent more than half the time since his election and is now in the east.

TEACHERS INSTITUTE.

A Good Start and an Interesting Morning Session.

Valuable Information Given on Language Work, Teachers Training and Primary Work—Good Practical Advice.

The first session of the Lucas County Teachers' Institute was held this morning in the Central school building. Dr. Hutsinpiller conducted the opening exercises, after which, the time of twenty minutes were occupied by Prof. Brumbaugh, who gave an interesting and instructive talk on "Language Work."

The principal points presented were upon "what the knowledge of English implies," and were classified as follows: First—Ability to converse well; second—ability to write well; third—ability to read well; fourth—ability to grasp the meaning, and fifth, ability to appreciate master-pieces. To become master of our mother language we must have the power to use these essentials. Prof. Brumbaugh gave an illustration of each point, making his ideas clear and concise.

From 10 to 10:40 o'clock Mr. N. E. Hutchinson spoke briefly of the first four years of school work. He stated "that usually the subjects presented at the institutions were in advance of primary work and that he considers that fine art is at the foundation"; that the start has everyhing to do with the future ability of the child. To obtain the best possible results there must be a glorious discontent with the present mode of teaching; that a teacher must not be self-satisfied, but ever seeking, through ambition, a wider horizon. The first important step in primary work, said he, is reading.

He recommended the sentence method of reading rather than the letter method, but advised the teachers to teach only that which they themselves thoroughly understand. In he sentence method—which, it hoped, will be largely adopted, the child relies upon thought for its unit of measure and looks forward to thought before he utters the words. He therefore reads understandingly and expression takes care of itself.

A five minutes' recess was taken after this talk, followed by Prof. Coler on "Teachers' Training, or What Should the Qualifications of a Good Teacher Be?" He stated that there were certain natural qualifications and acquired qualifications.

In the first place a teacher must have a knowledge of what he or she is going to teach and must know the relative importance of subjects taught; second, the teacher must have a knowledge of other subjects, which are not taught; for example, a teacher of geography should know something of geology, history, astronomy, books of travel, meaning of geographical names, botany, zoology, mathematics and should read the newspapers; third, she should have professional knowledge for teaching in a profession.

A new science which is being built up or established in Pedagogy.

The fundamental principles is establishing pedagogy as derived from proicipal drawn from physiology, history, psychology, ethics, history of education, government and religion. The acquired habits consist of neatness, patience, order and study.

He stated that character was the prime object of education.

After this excellent talk Mr. Ecker announced that the meeting would adjourn until 2 o'clock this afternoon, when Prof. Brumbaugh, Mr. Hutchinson and Prof. Coler would pursue their respective subjects.

The executive committee of the institute comprises Mr. H. C. Adams, Mrs. S. E. Ecker and Anna M. Conliss, secretary.

The following teachers were present: Lizzie Gundlach, Anna M. Conliss, Sophia Ecker, Adelaide Larned, Emma Fenneberg, Maud Roth, Julia Metzger, Carrie Graham, Alice Guitteau, Jessica Marshall, Maud Durand, Jean Marcellus, Bertha Moore, Carrie Griesel, Hunah L. Murphy, Kate Tiedtke, Janet Disher, Anna Van Dusen, Adelle Dallet, Agnes Wright, Emma Shurtz, Ida L. Fraser, Birdie Conlisk, Lizzie V. Keith, Edith L. Skelding, Irene A. Schuetze Jennie M. Jones, Emma L. Grover, of Catawba Island; Maud D. Knights, Julia Marshall, R. F. Platt, W. B. Harris, Sylvania; F. B. Pinkerton, Sylvania; Mary Froh, Edith Goulet, Mary McGuire, Maggie Brennen, Matilda Ecker, A. B. West, Sylvania; Fannie Peck, M. D. Sittle, Nellie F. Bash, Minnie Redding, Mary McGuire, Maumee; John Byrne, Detroit; Wm. F. Reid, Weston; W. S. Ford, Detroit.

A SYMPATHETIC QUEEN.

London, Aug. 29.—Mr. Asquith, the home secretary, brought the condolence of the queen to the widows and orphans of the coal mine disaster at Aberkenfig. Speaking to a miner's widow, Mr. Asquith said the queen had asked him to convey her sympathy to the wives who had lost their husbands and sons in the pit, for she knew what it was to lose husband and children.

Archbishop Farrar is credited by the London News with a wish that memorials might be erected in Westminster abbey of such reformers as William Lloyd Garrison, such rulers as Grant, Lincoln and Washington, and such authors as Hawthorne and Lowell; but the old difficulty of space, as has been announced, prevents. At the present moment there is positively room for only two more statues, Tennyson and Gladstone.

Of Tennyson's interest in Walt Whitman a friend of the latter, J. H. Johnston, delights to tell. The author of "In Memoriam" was wont to send the Camden poet a letter at least once a year, and sometimes he sent a cablegram. One of these latter messages read: "Dear Old Man: I, the older man, send you New Year's greeting."

Hugh Fay, the Irish entertainer, tells a good story of his adventure with a consumptive friend at Arkansas Hot Springs. Fay himself was much emaciated, but his unfortunate companion in misery was so attenuated that on receiving a postoffice order for $20 and being paid in silver dollars he had to give Fay half of them to save his life, the task of transporting them all being quite out of the question.

A WAR OF WORDS.

McCaffrey and Corbett Meet In New York

And Doing Nothing But Waste Wind.

The Californian Agrees to Knock Dominick Out in Four Rounds But the Pittsburger Don't See It That Way.

New York, Aug. 29.—James J. Corbett, the California pugilist, and Dominick McCaffrey, who is now acting as instructor in the Manhattan Athletic club, nearly came to blows this morning at the Madison Square garden, where Corbett is giving exhibitions to-day.

McCaffrey came to the garden to accept an offer that has appeared in several papers, by which Corbett was to stop McCaffrey in four rounds, on September 12, at the Manhattan Athletic club.

McCaffrey had, in interviews, criticised Corbett freely and predicted that John L. Sullivan would defeat him.

Corbett, in replying, had stated that he would knock the professor out before his own pupils for a purse of $2,000 if the club would give it. The feeling between the men was bitter.

At the garden to-day McCaffrey was accompanied by Capt. Van Schaick of the Manhattans, who said he would give the $2,000 purse and bet $5,000 that Corbett could not stop McCaffrey within the four rounds.

Corbett denied that he had made any such offer, whereupon McCaffrey exclaimed: "Why, it has been in all the papers," at the same time tapping Corbett on the arm with a folded newspaper that he was carrying.

"Don't you touch me," cried Corbett, excitedly. "Keep that paper off me," and with that he moved his chair on which he sat facing the back close up to McCaffrey.

"Does it hurt you, Jim?" asked Dominick, sarcastically. At that Corbett made a move as though to draw back his right hand for a blow ,but his better judgment prevailed and he remarked: "Don't try to monkey with me, or I'll chuck you out of that window."

"Oh, I guess I can protect myself," replied McCaffrey.

Then Corbett demanded to know if McCaffrey had stated that the Californian had beaten McCaffrey only by a scratch when they met in Brooklyn three years ago. McCaffrey would not answer directly and Corbett, who was very hot and nervous, called him a coward.

Capt. Van Schaick appealed to the men to control themselves, and Corbett told him to shut up. James was certainly on a very high horse, as a man who is trained up to a high tension is apt to be.

He then offered to box McCaffrey four rounds before the club giving the largest purse. He would bet the amount of the purse that he would knock Dominick out. He argued that by this arrangement McCaffrey only had to stay the four rounds to get all the money but if he (Corbett) proved the better man he wanted the decision to go on record.

McCaffrey answered that he only intended to accept Corbett's original proposition.

BENJAMIN AND WHITELAW

They will Get Together On Ophir Farm.

Believed That the Letters of Acceptance will be Made Public This Week.

New York, Aug. 29.—It was announced at republican national headquarters to-day that President Harrison would be in New York on Wednesday night. The president on his arrival, it was said to-day, would probably announce his program for the campaign. It is believed he will not remain in town more than a few days. He would stop with Whitelaw Reid at Ophir Farm. It is thought probable that the president's and Mr. Reid's letter of acceptance will be written there.

TOMMY'S PUNISHMENT.

Here is a Boy That Ought to be President.

"Tommy," said Mr. Fosdick severely, in the Detroit Free Press, "your mamma says you have been naughty and I must punish you. Come with me."

"What are you going to punish me with, pa?" asked Tommy as he accompanied his papa to an upper room.

"With this strap," replied Mr. Fosdick, producing a gad which Tommy remembered very distinctly, having seen and felt it on former occasions.

"The strap is made of leather, isn't it, papa?"

"Yes."

"They make leather out of the skins of cows, don't they, papa?"

"Yes, and the process is called tanning, which makes the tanning I am about to give you with this strap particularly appropriate."

"I saw a cow to-day, papa."

"That's strange," Mr. Fosdick answered sarcastically.

"It had its skin on yet, and when it came down the street a woman was afraid and came inside our gate till the cow went by. I don't know what makes women afraid of cows, do you?"

"No."

"You ain't afraid of cows, are you, papa?"

"No."

"You are a brave man and ain't afraid of anything, are you, papa? I told Rats Robinson yesterday you could thrash any man on the street, and Rats said his papa could wallop daylight out of you. He couldn't, could he, papa?"

"Well, I should think not."

"Of course not. That's what I told him."

"It was quite right of you to stand up for your father."

"Oh, I always do. Do you know what Rats Robinson's real name is?"

"No. What is it?"

"It's Nicodemus. I don't think much of a papa who would name his boy Nicodemus, do you?"

"No, I don't.

"Where do names come from, papa?"

"Oh, from different places. Some are found in the Bible."

"Thomas is a Bible name, isn't it?"

"Yes."

"Did you hunt it in the Bible to give it to me when I was born?"

"I knew it was there."

"Is it in that big book in the parlor?"

"Yes."

"Do you ever read the Bible, papa?"

"Why do you ask me that?"

"Because my Sunday school teacher says that everybody ought to read some in the Bible every day and——"

"There, that will do. Go and see if your mamma doesn't want you."

And Fosdick hung up the strap and put on his hat and went down town.

DROWNED FROM A STEAMER.

Cleveland, O., Aug. 29.—William H. Masterson, an electrician, fell from the steamer City of Detroit, while she was on her way from Detroit to Cleveland last night, and was drowned. He had been in Detroit visiting his mother.

James Payn writes that he was once in the company of a learned divine who rather ridiculed the idea that it is hard for a story writer to hit on a good plot. He thereupon offered the boastful theologian, who had said plot-finding was as easy as falling off a log, £10 for every good plot suggested by him to Payn. Twelve were turned in at length, "six old as the hills and the other six not worth a farthing."

J. M. Barrie, the novelist, is said to have political ambitions. He aspires to represent his native place in Scotland, but as the sitting members are, like Mr. Barrie himself, strongly liberal, the historian of Thrums may have to wait several years before he can gratify his longing for parliamentary honors.

Since 1885 the course of the river Volga has rapidly been changing, until the city of Saratov, once called the "Golden Port of Volga," is left three miles away from its banks. Saratov is a well-built city of 125,000 inhabitants. Its trade, which was very large, depended mainly on the river.

LIZZIE BORDEN.

Conflicting Stories Told by the Suspected Girl.

Fall River, Mass., Aug. 29.—In the Borden trial to-day Miss Alice M. Russell created a sensation by testifying that immediately after the discovery of the murder Miss Lizzie told her that her alleged visit to the barn was to procure a piece of iron or tin with which to fix a window.

This contradicts subsequent statements of Miss Lizzie, that she went there for lead sinkers.

THE FARMER IN POLITICS.

The Progress So Far Is Mostly Due to Efficient Organization.

"Not a few of those who write upon the subject would have us think that politics is not his province; that the farmer's place is on the farm, his work the tilling of the soil, and that to the identical and monied class belongs the ability and therefore the right to construct the laws and take care of the country," says Newton L. Bennell in the North American Review.

"Too long have the farmers, by their conduct, if not in reality, consented to this state of things; but those good days of propriety are gone. The farmer of today insists upon meddling with politics, and even demands that those who legislate shall recognize his existence and the agricultural interests of the country. These interests have to some extent been recognized and these demands partially considered. That this is true is either directly or indirectly due to the farmer's agitation. In even so short a time have good results to the farmer followed the work of the organization."

JAPANESE WOMEN SERENE.

Perhaps the secret of the sweet expression and habitual serenity of the Japanese women can be found in their freedom from small worries. The fashion of dress never varying saves the wear of mind over that subject, and the bareness of the houses and simplicity of diet makes housekeeping a mere bagatelle. Everything is exquisitely clean and easily kept so. There is no paint, no drapery, no crowd of little ornaments, coming into the houses in the footwear worn in the dusty streets. And then the feeling of living in rooms that can be turned into balconies and verandas at a moment's notice, of having walls that slide away as freely as do the scenes on the stage and let in all out of doors or change the suite of rooms to the shape and size that the whim of the day or the hour requires. The Japanese are learning much from us—some things not to their improvement. We might begin, with profit to ourselves, to learn of them.

HIS ATTITUDE DECLARED.

An individual who aspires to the particular seat in the house of representatives which belongs to the Bloody Seventh was talking to a crowd of voters in a neighboring village, says the Rome Tribune. One of the party said to him:

"Colonel, I understand you are projecting for a seat in congress?"

The colonel nodded.

"Well, we would like to know how you stand on the Mills bill and the McKinley bill?"

"Wall," said the colonel, "I ain't thought much about it, but I'm inclined to think the Mills bill ought to be paid first, as it is the oldest of the two."

A gentleman of Petersburg, Va., has in his possession a silver medal which was found some time ago by a lady and which as a war relic may be of value to the owner. The medal is the size and shape of a quarter of a dollar and on the face bears the following inscription: "Philip Brady, Co. I, 125 N. Y. V., Troy, N. Y." On the reverse: "Taken prisoner at Harper's Ferry," and underneath are engraved the following names of battles in which the person probably participated: "Gettysburg, Auburn, Bristow Station, Mine Run, Morton's Ford."

MARRIED FORTY-EIGHT YEARS.

An Old Couple Commits Suicide in New York City.

New York, Aug. 29.—John Obermeyer, a barber, and his wife Margaret, committed suicide together in their home at No. 835 First avenue this morning by taking chloroform.

They were each 68 years old and had been married 48 year. They came here from Hamburg many years ago.

They left letters, in one of which stated that on account of old age, the loss of friends and want of work, they had found life useless. They leave three children who reside in Germany.

CAN HAVE BIBLES.

London, Aug. 29.—A dispatch from St. Petersburg says that the czar has issued an edict permitting the importation of Bibles into his dominions when printed in any other language than the Russian. No translation in the latter language can, however, be circulated within the confines of the empire unless printed by authority of the holy synod.

Don't You Know

that you can secure almost immediate relief from Indigestion, and that uncomfortable fullness after meals, by simply taking a dose of Simmons Liver Regulator? Some people think that because it is called Liver Regulator it has nothing to do with Indigestion and the like. It is the inaction of the Liver that causes Indigestion, and that fullness; also Constipation, and those Bilious Headaches. Millions have been made to understand this and have been cured from these troubles by Simmons Liver Regulator—a medicine unfailing and purely vegetable.

From Rev. M. B. Wharton, Baltimore, Md

"It affords me pleasure to add my testimony to the great virtues of Simmons Liver Regulator. I have had experience with it, as occasion demanded, for many years, and regard it as the greatest medicine of the times. So good a medicine deserves universal commendation.

COME.

(The last poem she wrote.)

My sweetheart! my loveling! you darkened all the day,
When from my silent dwelling your footsteps turned away;
The morn was dark as midnight, the noonday sad as dawn,
The milk-white daisies drooped their heads along the dewy lawn.

My darling! my dearest! I sought the garden round,
But never in a blossom your precious face I found.
No rose was red beside your lips, no lily like your throat,
No sound or thrilling of your voice in any thrush's note.

Ah! what is like your eyes, dear? gray sparkles of the sea,
So clear and crystal shining their beryl glances be;
And where is any flower of all that may compare
With the soft, dancing glitter of the sunshine in your hair?

Alone through lingering daytime I listen to your feet;
Those springing steps no longer along the pathway beat.
I hear the dewdrops rustle in the branches overhead,
But home and you together for many a day have fled.

My life is sad and weary, too dark with want and pain;
But your dear eyes would bring its light and gladness back again.
My soul is tired of desert sands, bereft of cheer and balm,
For you were like the diamond spring beneath its lonely palm.

Come back, come back, my darling! Across the spaces hear!
Come light this night of grief and gloom, my Hesper shining clear;
Not long have I to linger, not long to call or cry;
Come back, my treasure! come, my heart, and bless me e'er I die!

A curious marriage custom is reported by Dr. Post as existing in Southern India among some of the more primitive non-Aryan tribts. This consists of wedding a girl to a plant, a tree, an animal, or even to an inanimate object, the notion being that any ill luck which may follow an actual marriage may be averted by a union of this kind.

A marriage bureau has been started in a New Jersey town with an interesting side issue. In case a person receiving its circular should be averse to marriage, or already married, the bureau offers him a "fun list." There are immense possibilities in a scheme of this kind, and it will bear looking after by the guardians of law and order.

TALE OF JOHNNY JONES.

The man of letters sat alone in his garret study, where the cobwebs picturesquely draped the rafters, and the subdued light, filtering through the fly specked window, shone softly upon the empty pipes and glasses on his escritoire, and touched with radiance the returned manuscripts and old shoes heaped in the dusky corners. The atmosphere was permeated with the rare effluvium of genius and the subtle aroma of beefsteak frying six floors down. Here the vulgar clink of jingling gold disturbed not the phantasies of the dreamer. Indeed, a silver quarter would be as much of a surprise to that man's trousers pocket as a pousse cafe to the stomach of a car driver or a Coney Island sausage sandwich to the internal economy of Queen Victoria. Dreaming there over his pencil of the cool foam kissing the beer glass brim, the soothing bliss of the cigarette's fumes, and trying to recall the lineaments of the face upon the coin of the realm, the long-forgotten sensation which accompanies a meat dinner, and the exquisite ecstacy of a cocktail headache, suddenly there came to him one of the iridescent inspirations known only to master minds, and he wrote.

Swiftly the inspired pencil spelled out the story of the despised and forsaken waif who grew from sickly childhood to daring manhood, the terror of all law-abiding citizens, the destroyer of life and virtue, "The Redhanded Raider of Bloody Gulch," who, later still touched by the memory of his mother, whom he had never seen, or by the innocence of a fair and youthful victim of his passion, suddenly reformed, and with his spoils, gathered from "holding up" stages, assisting express messengers to get their last reward, and other equally upright motives, he founded great universities according to the latest fashion for rich men, and spent his closing days in honorable service in the senatorial halls of his country appropriating her revenues wrung from the industry of the oppressed, introducing bills for the free coinage of silver extracted from his own mines, establishing a tariff for the good and glory of the nation and the protection of the particular combine in which he was most interested, and in supporting by his honorble name and influence the noble provisions of the force bill.

Now this work of genius sold to the appreciative and generous publisher for the munificent sum of $4.40, and with the proceeds it is to be hoped that the starving author bought enough chap grog to make him know for once in his life how it feels to be a millionaire, with fame and name thrown in, for here we leave him to follow the fate of the child of his brain.

The book, in its attractive yellow cover and with its alluring title, ultimately found its way to a second-hand stall kept by a beery and venerable old girl, whose head was white with the snows of age and whose joints were rheumatic with its frosts.

Here little Johnny Jones, who proudly wore the scarlet-braided coat and silver shield of the winged Mercury of the city messenger service, eyed it wistfully. When freckles were dealt out Johnny must have stood at the head of the row; when noses were passed he was forgotten until the last, when, in the confusion, his nasal appendage was hastily adjusted wrong side up, tip-tilted skywards, like a flower to the sun, instead of having the downward inflection recommended by the best authorities on the architecture of noses. Johnny's most striking feature, however, was a pair of eyes so oddly focussed that it was possible for him to nonchalantly study the shop window sweets over the way and at the same time to see the exact time when the old woman was engaged with his confederate and he could swipe the sweet. By the time she could hobble to the corner, Johnny was far up the block, and when the policeman could excuse himself from the maid in the area way and start in pursuit, Johnny's legs were dangling from the back of a swift moving wagon, and Johnny's dirty fingers waved impudently from the tip of his tilted nose

All day the boy pored over the book, his heart thrilled with heroic hope. He read it in the park, where he waited, where a good old lady had paid his car fare, because she wanted him to hurry, sent him after her minister to bless a dying man. The man died alone, the minister was gone, and Johnny charged extra pay for having to wait. He read more of it when a young mother called him to go for her husband, because the baby was dying. The husband finished his conference with his typewriter, and the baby recovered from his colic, when again Johnny charged extra for waiting. But, worst of all, he read on the steps at the dressmakers, where a pretty woman sent him for a gown that was to be done at 5 o'clock for her to wear to a dinner. It was finished at 6:30. So was the book. And with the spoils of the day Johnny bought a hat with a prodigious brim, a shirt of scarlet hue, an old army revolver, and, then stealing home in the dusk to appropriate the best butcher knife as a souvenir of home and mother, he dazzled the eyes of his chums and filled their souls with ambition like his own.

In the shadowy freight yards over the Jersey border "our young heroes," as they say in the Sunday school library works, crawled into an empty cattle car and began their journey to fame and fortune. It was not an auspicious beginning, for freight cars are not fitted up with woven wire mattresses and down coverlets. Still sweet sleep came to the buoyant hearts, and bright visions of a fair future. But not to Johnny Jones, for he was doing sentinel duty, and trying to decide whether, when he found his gold mine, he would have a candy shop or a cigar factory, when suddenly a heavy hand clutched the fullness of the rear of his trousers, and before he could cry "Halt, villain!" or "Stay, scoundrel!" before he could cover the frightened foe with the cold, glistening muzzle of his six-shooter, he heard something drop outside that freight car.

When his nose stopped bleeding he discovered that it was Johnny Jones, and that his two associate ruffians were taking account of black and blue spots not far off.

The three would-be conspirators held a council of war, and as a result of its deliberations began counting how many railroad ties it takes to make a section along the line from Newark back to Jersey City. In the cold light of early dawn they confiscated some green apples and some raw eggs for their breakfast, because each of the women at whose doors they begged for food had a big dog or a hired man or a wet mop waiting to welcome them. The eggs and apples entered into a little internecine strife of their own that made the conspirators sad and ever sadder and put the value of mothers and mustard plasters way above par. Still they were cheered by thoughts of a kindly welcome at home, of the joy of their fond parents at their safe return, of the pots of jam that would be opened, the extra lumps of sugar in the steaming coffee, the possibility of cigarettes to be purchased with the pennies the old man would shell out in the exuberance of his joy.

Alas! for the earthly expectation, for the futility of human hopes. Johnny Jones' pa received him with a lecture on home rule, whose salient points were emphasized with the soft side of a bed slat on that portion of Johnny's anatomy best adapted to the purpose, and Johnny doesn't sit down now to read the adventures of "Bloody Handed Mike;" he eats his dinners off the mantel shelf in bitterness of soul.—New York Sun.

Don't buy a blood-purifier because it is "cheap." The best—the Superior Medicine—Ayer's Sarsaparilla, is, in the end, the cheapest blood-purifier in the market. The ingredients of which it is composed are the most expensive and medicinally efficacious that can be obtained.

ABOUT PEOPLE.

The Marquis of Salisbury is probably the only living man who has twice refused a dukedom. That title was vainly offered him in 1886, when he was thrown out of office by a vote of the house of commons, and again in 1887. It is believed that the offer will be repeated and accepted next month.

Prof. Unwin of the Guilds college, London, has, it is said, been offered over 5,000 pounds a year to undertake the duties of engineer in chief to the extension works now being carried out at the Falls of Niagara to utilize part of the enormous hydraulic power which hitherto has been running to waste.

Rev. Joseph Sidney Hill has been chosen by the Pan-Anglican council to succeed the late Dr. Crowther as bishop of the Niger diocese in Western Africa. Mr. Hill is not quite 50 years of age, and has had varied acquaintance with missionary work, his first place of labor being at Leke, in West Africa.

Gen. Hazen took his 8-year-old son abroad with him. About the boy's neck hung a handsome gold medal, on one side of which was his name. On the other side of the medal was this inscription: "If this child should be lost send him at once to his grandfather, Washington McLean, Cincinnati, United States of America."

Count Wilhelm von Bismarck, the ex-chancellor's second, is also his favorite son. "Count Bill," as he is widely called, is now president of the council of Hanover. He looks remarkably like his father, but is not quite so tall or so massively built. "Count Bill" is married to his cousin, Prince Bismarck's only sister's child.

Ben Butler is said to be sadly bent with age. His face has the look of health, but his massive frame has become an unmistakable burden. His hands move unsteadily, while his eyes appear swollen and almost hidden by the thick folds of flesh on his cheeks. But his head is clear as a bell, and at 74 there is no shrewder lawyer or politician in New England.

Rev. John H. Coleman, a Methodist minister of Troy, says that his father and his uncle are the oldest twins now living in the United States. His father is a farmer of Gloversville, N. Y., and his uncle is a Methodist minister of Fond du Lac, Wis. They are 92 years of age, have "never been sick a day" and "do not know the taste of liquor or tobacco."

M. Zola is one of those who flourish on abuse. A fierce battle is raging in France just now against the man who wrote "La Debacle," and therein revealed, it is alleged, a lack of patriotism. Every newspaper in Paris echoes, in various modulations, the shout of "Traitor," and meanwhile an edition of 100,000 copies of "La Debacle" has been sold out.

MERCURIAL

Mr. J. C. Jones, of Fulton, Ark., says of S.S.S. "About ten years ago I contracted a severe case of blood poison. Leading physicians prescribed medicine after medicine, which I took without any relief. I also tried mercurial and potash remedies, with unsuccessful results, but which brought on an attack of mercurial rheumatism that made my life one of agony. After suffering four years I gave up all remedies and commenced using S. S. S. After taking several bottles, I was entirely cured and able to resume work. S.S.S. is the greatest medicine for blood poisoning to-day on the market."

Advice to Mothers of Fretful Babies

828 Huron St., Toledo, O., July 17, '92.
Hand Medicine Co., Gentlemen:

My baby is now three months old and has had colic all her life. We gave her all kinds of remedies without any beneficial effect. I was almost discouraged in trying anything else when a friend told me of your Dr. Hand's Colic Cure. I gave her 12 drops which acted like a charm. Now as soon as I discover she has wind colic I give her one or two doses which relieves her entirely. I want to advise all mothers who have fretful babies to use Dr. Hand's Colic Cure. I will hereafter always keep it in the house.

If Barytes and other adulterants of White Lead are just as good as

why is it that all the bogus and adulterated white leads are always branded "Pure," or "Strictly Pure White Lead?"

No one ever puts a misleading brand on an article of merchandise, unless he wants to "work off" an inferior for a better.

This Barytes or Baryta, is a heavy white powder, worthless as paint; costing only about one cent per pound and is used to adulterate and cheapen the mixture. No one ever adulterates white lead with an article costing more than Lead.

If you purchase any of the following brands you are sure of having strictly pure white lead—

ANCHOR (Cincinnati)
ARMSTRONG & McKELVY (Pittsburgh)
BEYMER-BAUMAN (Pittsburgh)
COLLIER (St. Louis)
CORNELL (Buffalo)
DAVIS-CHAMBERS (Pittsburgh)
ECKSTEIN (Cincinnati)
FAHNESTOCK (Pittsburgh)
MORLEY (Cleveland)
RED SEAL (St. Louis)
SHIPMAN (Chicago)

These brands of strictly pure White Lead and the National Lead Co.'s Tinting Colors are for sale by the best dealers in paints everywhere.

DESCRIPTION OF GOD.

Dr. Talmage's Sermon in England.

He Explains How the Diety is Love and Also a Consuming Fire.

London, Aug. 29.—During the past week Dr. Talmage has been preaching to enormous audiences in the great manufacturing towns of the English Midland counties. In Birmingham, in spite of the great size of the churches placed at his disposal, it was necessary to engage the Town hall, the spacious building in which John Bright delivered his famous speeches to the electors and even this edifice would not contain half the people who tried to get entrance.

At Leicester, Cardiff, and Swansea there was the same eagerness to hear him and he was received with unbounded enthusiasm. The sermon selected for publication this week is on Isaiah vi. 2. "With twain he covered his face, with twain he covered his feet; and with twain he did fly."

In a hospital of leprosy good King Uzziah had died, and the whole land was shadowed with solemnity, and theological and prophetic Isaiah was thinking about religious things, as one is apt to do in time of great national bereavement, and forgetting the presence of his wife and two sons, who made up his family, he has a dream, not like the dreams of ordinary character which generally come from indigestion, but a vision most instructive, and under touch of the hand of the Almighty.

The place, the ancient temple; building, grand, awful, majestic. Within that temple a throne higher and grander than that occupied by any czar or sultan or emperor. On that throne, the eternal Christ. In lines surrounding that throne the brightest celestials, not the cherubim, but higher than they, the most exquisite and radiant of the heavenly inhabitants; the seraphim. They are called burners, because they look like fire. Lips of fire, eyes of fire, feet of fire. In addition to the features and the limbs which suggest a human being there are opinions which suggest the lithest, the swiftest, the most buoyant and most inspiring of all intelligent creation—a bird. Each seraph had six wings, each two of the wings for a different purpose. Isaiah's dream quivers and flashes with these opinions. Now folded, now spread, now beaten in locomotion. "With twain he covered his feet, with twain he covered his face, and with twain he did fly."

The probability is that these wings were not all used at once. The seraph standing there near the throne overwhelmed at the insignificance of the paths his feet had trodden as compared with the paths trodden by the feet of God, and with the lameness of his locomotion amounting almost to decrepitude as compared with the divine velocity, with feathery veil of angelic modesty hides the feet. "With twain he did cover his feet."

Standing there overpowered by the overmatching splendors of God's glory, and unable longer with the eyes to look upon them, and wishing those eyes shadowed from the insufferable glory, the pinions gather over the countenance. "With twain he did cover the face." Then as God tells this seraph to go to the furthest outpost of immensity on message of light and love and joy, and get back before the first anthem, it does not take the seraph a great while to spread himself upon the air with unimagined celerity, one stroke of the wing equal to 10,000 leagues of air. "With twain he did fly."

The most practical and useful lesson for you and me—when we see the seraph spreading his wings over the feet, is a lesson of humility at imperfection. The brightest angels of God are so far beneath God that he charges them with folly. The seraphs so far beneath God, and we so far beneath the seraph in service we ought to be plunged into humility, utter and complete. Our feet, how laggard they have been in the divine service! Our feet, how many missteps they have taken. Our feet, in how many paths of worldliness and folly they have walked.

Neither God nor seraph intended to put any dishonor upon that which is one of the masterpieces of Almighty God—the human foot. Physiologist and anatomist are overwhelmed at the wonders of its organization. The Bridgewater Treatise, written by Sir Charles Bell, on the wisdom and goodness of God illustrated in the human hand was a result of the $40,000 bequeathed in the last will and testament of the Earl of Bridgewater for the encouragement of Christian literature. The world could afford to forgive his eccentricities, though he had two dogs seated at his table, and though he put six dogs alone in an equipage drawn by four horses and attended by two footmen. With his large bequest inducing Sir Charles Bell to write so valuable a book on the wisdom of God in the structure of the human hand, the world could afford to forgive his oddities. And the world could now afford to have another Earl of Bridgewater, however idiosyncratic, if he would induce some other Sir Charles Bell to write a book on the wisdom and goodness of God in the construction of the human foot. The articulation of its bones, the lubrication of its joints, the gracefulness of its lines, the ingenuity of its cartilages, the delicacy of its veins, the rapidity of its muscular contraction, the sensitiveness of its nerves. I sound the praises of the human foot. With that we halt or climb or march. It is the foundation of the physical fabric. It is the base of a God-poised column. With it the warrior braces himself for battle. With it the orator plants himself for eulogium. With it the toiler reaches his work. With it the outraged stamps his indignation. Its loss is an irreparable disaster. Its health an invaluable equipment. If you want to know its value ask the man whose foot paralysis hath shriveled or machinery hath crushed, or surgeon's knife hath amputated. The Bible honors it. Especial care: "Lest thou dash thy foot against a stone;" "he will not suffer thy foot to be moved;" "thy feet shall not stumble." Especial charge: "Keep thy foot when thy goest into the house of God." Especial peril: "Their feet shall slide in due time." Connected with the world's dissolution: "He shall set one foot on the sea and the other on the earth."

Give me the history of your foot and I will give you the history of your lifetime. Tell me up what steps it has gone, down what declivities, and in what roads and in what directions, and I will know more about you than I want to know. None of us could endure the scrutiny. Our feet are not always in the paths of God. Sometimes in paths of worldliness. Our feet, a divine and glorious machinery of usefulness and work, so often making missteps, so often going in the wrong direction. God knowing every step, the patriarch saying, "Thou settest a print on the heels of my feet." Crimes of the hand, crimes of the tongue, crimes of the eye, crimes of the ear not worse than crimes of the foot. Oh, we want the wings of humility to cover the feet. Ought we not to go into self-abnegation before the all-searching, all-scrutinizing, all-trying eye of God? The seraphs do. How much more we. "With twain he covered the feet."

All this talk about the dignity of human nature is braggadocio and a sin. Our nature started at the hand of God regal, but it has been pauperized. There was a well in Belgium which once had very pure water, and it was stoutly masoned with stone and brick; but that well afterward became the center of the battle of Waterloo. At the opening of the battle the soldiers with their sabers compelled the gardener, William Von Kiysom, to draw water out of the well for them, and it was very pure water. But the battle raged, and three hundred dead and half dead were flung into the well for quick and easy burial, so that the well of refreshment became the well of death, and long after, people looked down into the well, and they saw the bleached skulls but no water. So the human soul was a well of good, but the armies of sin have fought around it, and fought across it and been slain, and it has become a well of skeletons. Dead hopes, dead resolutions, dead opportunities, dead ambitions. An abandoned well; unless Christ shall reopen and purify and fill it as the well of Belgium never was. Unclean, unclean!

Another seraphic posture in the text: "With twain he covered the face." That means reverence Godward. Never so much irreverence abroad in the world as to-day. You see it in the defaced statuary, in the cutting out of figures from fine paintings, in the chipping of monuments for a memento, in the fact that military guard must stand at the grave of Grant and Garfield, and that old shade trees must be cut down for firewood, though fifty George Morrises beg the woodmen to spare the tree, and that calls a corpse a cadaver, and that speaks of death as going over to the majority, and substitutes for the reverent terms father and mother, "the old man" and "the old woman," and finds nothing impressive in the ruins of Baalber or the columns of Karnac, and see no difference in the Sabbath from other days, except to allow more dissipation, and reads the Bible in what is called higher criticism, making it not the word of God, but a good book with some fine things in it. Irreverence never so much abroad. How many take the name of God in vain, how many trivial things said about the Almighty. Not willing to have God in the world, they roll up an idea of sentimentality and humanitarianism and impudence and imbecility, and call it God. No wings of reverence over the face, no taking off of shoes on holy ground. You can tell from the way they talk they could have made a better world than this, and that the God of the Bible shocks every sense of propriety. They talk of the love of God in a way that shows you they believe it does not make any difference how bad a man is here, he will come in at the shining gate. They talk of the love of God in such a way which shows you they think it is a general jail delivery for all the abandoned and the scoundrelism of the universe. No punishment hereafter for any wrong done here.

The Bible gives us two descriptions of God, and they are both true. In one place the Bible says God is love. In another place the Bible says God is consuming fire. The explanation is plain as plain can be. God through Christ is love. God out of Christ is fire. To win the one and escape the other we have only to throw ourselves body, mind and soul into Christ's keeping. "No," says Irreverence, "I want no atonement, I want no pardon, I want no intervention; I will go up and face God, and I will challenge him, and I will defy him, and I will ask him what he wants to do with me." So the finite confronts the infinite, so a tack hammer tries to break a thunderbolt, so the breath of human nostrils defies the everlasting God, while the hierarchs of heaven bow the head and bend the knee as the King's chariot goes by, and the archangel turns away because he cannot endure the splendor, and the chorus of all the empires of heaven comes in with full diapason, "holy, holy, holy!"

Reverence for sham, reverence for the old merely because it is old, reverence for stupidity however learned, reverence for incapacity however finely inaugurated, I have none. But we want more reverence for God, more reverence for the Bible, more reverence for the pure, more reverence for the good. Reverence a characteristic of all great natures. You hear it in the roll of the master oratorios. You see it in the Raphaels and Titians and Ghirlandijos. You study it in the characteristics of all great natures. You topher Wrens. Do not be flippant about God. Do not joke about death. Do not make fun of the Bible. Do not deride the Eternal. The brightest and mightiest seraph cannot look unabashed upon him. Involuntarily the wings come up. "With twain he covered his face."

Who is this God whom the arrogant and intractable refuse reverence? There was an engineer by the name of Strasicrates who was in the employ of Alexander the Great, and he offered to hew a mountain in the shape of his master, the emperor, the enormous figure to hold in the left hand a city of ten thousand inhabitants, while with the right hand it was to hold a basin large enough to collect all the mountain torrents. Alexander applauded him for his ingenuity, but forbade the enterprise because of its costliness. Yet I have to tell you that our King holds in one hand all the cities of the earth, and all the oceans, while he has the stars of heaven for his tiara.

Earthly power goes from hand to hand, from Henry I. to Henry II. and Henry III., from Charles I. to Charles II., from Louis I. to Louis II. and Louis III., but from everlasting to everlasting is God. God the first, God the last, God the only. He has one telescope with which he sees everything—his omniscience. He has one bridge with which he crosses—everything—his omniscience. He has one hammer with which he builds everything—his omniscience. Put two tablespoonfuls of water in the palm of your hand and it will overflow; but Isaiah indicates that God puts the Atlantic and the Pacific and the Arctic and the Antarctic and the Mediterranean and the Black Sea and all the waters of the earth in the hollow of his hand. The fingers the beach on one side, the wrist the beach on the other. "He holdeth the water in the hollow of his hand."

As you take a pinch of salt or powder between your thumb and two fingers, so Isaiah indicates God takes up the earth. He measures the dust of the earth, the original there indicating that God takes all the dust of all the continents between the thumb and two fingers. You wrap around your hand a blue ribbon five times, ten times. You say it is five hand-breadths, or it is ten hand-breadths. So, indicates the prophet, God winds the blue ribbon of the sky around his hand. "He meteth out the heavens with a span." You know that balances are made of a beam suspended in the middle with two basins at the extremity of equal heft. In that way what vast heft has been weighed. But what are all the balances of earthly manipulation compared with the balances that Isaiah saw suspended when he saw God putting into the scales the Alps and Appenines and Mount Washington and the Sierra Nevadas. You see the earth had to be ballasted. It would not do to have too much weight in Europe, or too much weight in Africa, or in America, so when God made the mountains he weighed them. The Bible distinctly says so. God knows the weight of the great ranges that cross the continents, the tons, the pounds avoirdupois, the ounces, the grains, the millegrammes—just how much they weighed then, just how much they weigh now. "He weighed the mountains in scales and the hills in a balance." Oh, what a God to run against; oh, what a God to disobey; oh, what a God to dishonor; oh, what a God to defy! The brightest, the mightiest angel takes no familiarity with God. The wings of reverence are lifted. "With twain he covered the face."

A NEW THING IN SPIRITUALISM

Prescriptions of a Dead Physician Received From His Shade by a Medium.

Three years ago a brilliant young physician of this city committed suicide while temporarily deranged, a condition brought about by overstudy and overwork. His death was a great shock to his friends, of whom he had many, and a painful surprise to his medical associates, who looked upon him as having a specially bright future.

The other day the recollection of this young physician was brought to the reporter in a singular way.

"Look at that," said a gentleman, showing a prescription signed with the name of the dead doctor. "I'm on my way to the drug store to get that filled for my wife, and shouldn't wonder if you would like to have the story of how she came by it, for this isn't an old prescription—you can see the ink is hardly dry on the paper."

"How can that be, for he has been dead three or four years?"

"Did you ever hear of Miss —— (mentioning the name of a well known professional medium)? Of course you have. She has lately taken up the practice of medicine, and is doing a great business, though I do not suppose she ever read a medical book in her life. She claims that the spirit of this young doctor is her control, and that he makes the diagnosis of each case and writes the prescription, her hand merely holding the pen."

It is said that other spiritualistic healers are somewhat jealous of the new fad, which is drawing away some of their best customers. If this style of practicing medicine is a go, and any uneducated person with a good medical control "over there" can practice, there is a likelihood that doctors' fees may be greatly reduced to meet this competition. The consulting physician on the other side is at no expense for board or clothes, and as time is no longer an object the partner here gets all there is in it.—Indianapolis Journal.

Destructive Fire in Augusta, Georgia.

The Boys Stick to the Case and "Set Up" Their Own Burn Out.

Augusta, Ga., Aug. 29.—Sunday morning fire was discovered about 3 o'clock in the large three-story building occupied by Fleming & Bowles, furniture dealers, and the Alexander Seed and Drug Co. The Chronicle office was in the same building.

While the Chronicle's force was at work putting the news of the fire in type the firemen seemed to hold their own, but it was not for long. The heat almost scorched the men at work, but they stuck to their post until the story, briefly told, was printed and the Chronicle predicted its own fate.

When the press ceased to revolve it had turned out the entire issue of the Chronicle. The floor in the composing room then collapsed and down came immense stone slabs and thousands of pounds of type.

The walls came down with a terrific crash, completely burying a frame house in the rear. About 8 o'clock the fire was gotten under control and thanks to the thick wall between the Chronicle building and the Dorr building the flames could not pass further up the block which otherwise seemed doomed. The loss is between $500,000 and $600,000.

Before the fire had been placed under control an alarm was sent in which called the department to the large brick warehouse in the rear of the Western Union Telegraph company, formerly occupied by the Robert Portner Brewing company. It was damaged to the extent of $6,000.

WAS A CLIMBER.

A Wapak Boy Astonishes the People.

Wapakoneta, O., Aug. 29.—(Special)—If there is a small boy in Ohio who has real nerve and no fear in his character, it is the young son of John Musser, of this city.

His kite, which he was flying near the Methodist church, was blown onto the steeple by the wind. The average boy would have stood and regretted its loss a few minutes and then made another, but this boy was not to be so easily beaten of his kite.

He climbed onto the roof, then on the lightning rod and from there pulled himself over two projections of cornice and onto the base where the slope of the steeple begins. He walked around the narrow projection to where the kite was hanging by an insulator, but it was out of his reach and a hard pull at the tail brought that essential part of the plaything, but the kite hung fast.

He started up the rod on the steeple, but could not draw up his body and so he started down and soon stood safely on the roof of the church.

A sigh of relief went up from the fifty or more people who stood in amazement at the youth's daring and to whose cries not to go up he had paid no attention. He climbed fully 65 feet and the ascent was too dangerous an undertaking for any ordinary person to attempt much less a youth of 8 years.

Heiskell's Ointment
Is a positive cure for all forms of
SKIN DISEASE.
We base this assertion on our observation of over thirty years, in which time a very large number and variety of Skin Diseases have been reported to us as cured, by the simple use of Heiskell's Ointment, without the aid of internal remedies. Many of these were cases of long duration, that had resisted the treatment of the most eminent medical talent in this and other countries. Heiskell's Ointment seems never to have failed in a single instance.

Wheat Quotations for the Day—Price Currents for Produce and Other Articles.

Wheat Sowing.

The Ohio agricultural experiment station has for several years been investigating such problems in wheat culture as the quantity of seed per acre, the depth of seeding, drilling versus broadcasting, the mixing of different varieties, cross drilling and the use of the roller press. The average results favor sowing at the rate of five to seven pecks per acre of thoroughly cleaned seed, and sowing this not to exceed two inches deep. In favorable seasons broadcast seeding has produced about as large a crop as drilling; but if the seeding season be hot and dry, drilling is likely to give the best results. No advantage has yet been discovered in the mixing of different varieties. There has been a slight increase of crop where the wheat was crossed drilled, the same quantity of seed being used in each case. This increase may be partly due to the more thorough pulverization of the soil accomplished by the double drilling. The roller press—a wheel following each hoe of the drill—has not increased the yield sufficiently to warrant its use.

The office of experiment stations, United States department of agriculture, Washington, D. C., has issued a bulletin on the fermentations of milk and their relations to dairying, which gives in concise form information of great value to all engaged in the handling of milk. Following is the table of contents of the bulletin, which may be procured by any one interested by addressing the office of experiment stations, as above, or Hon. J. M. Rusk, secretary of agriculture, Washington, D. C.:

Wool.

London, Aug. 29.—During the week business in the wool market has been slow. The transactions, which are few in number, were on the basis of the last auction. There was a sale of sheepskins Thursday, at which 3,256 bales were offered. Another sale was held on Friday, the offerings comprising 460 bales of skins and 110 Cape of Good Hope and Natal skins. The sales were fairly attended, but the competition was tame. The quality of the offerings averaged good. Merinos sold at mostly on a par with the prices at the last sales, though occasionally they went at a reduction. Cross-breeds dragged and values were 1-4d lower. The Cape of Good Hope and Natal skins were withdrawn. The imports of wool during the past week were as follows: From New South Wales 2,726 bales, Victoria 526 bales, South Australia 940 bales, New Zealand 3,626 bales, China 805 bales, and from various other places 712 bales. The arrivals for the next series of sales, which opens on September 13, number 318,904 bales.

Advices from Algoa Bay state that the market there is weak. Holders will not accept the offers. A few greasies have been sold for the continent at 4 7-8d. Stocks are small and the arrivals are growing less.

IT DEALS OUT DEATH.

Nihilists Have Perfected a New Infernal Machine.

It Can be Used Without the Slightest Danger to the Operator—Wondering How the Authorities Can Guard Themselves Against It.

New York, Aug. 29.—The Herald says: After years of labor the Russian Nihilists have at last succeeded in inventing a perfectly satisfactory infernal machine. The model was finished in Londan a few days ago and a report which has reached this country says that those who examined it pronounce it as perfect a death dealing instrument as could be devised. The machine is sixteen centimeters in height and four in width. It is rectangular in shape, portable and looks somewhat like a small book. Even when charged it can be carried with the utmost safety in the breast pocket of a coat and no one but the initiated would ever imagine that it was anything but a bulky purse. When the time for action comes the Nihilist can take it out of his pocket, place it where the explosion is to occur and then calmly walk off to a place of safety. At the appointed moment the machine will explode without the aid of clockwork or even of a lighted match.

Instead of dynamite a secret explosive is used and with this the bottom of the machine is filled. Over the explosive is placed a detonator which consists of a chemical product and is set on fire by coming in contact with a drop of some secret liquid. A glass ball holds this liquid and when an explosion is desired all that is necessary is to let it trickle dorp by drop through a tube, at the lower extremity of which is the small chemical mass resting on the explosive. When the machine is turned upside down so that the glass ball is at the bottom no explosion can take place, but when the machine is held upright so that the liquid can trickle down to the detonator an explosion is bound to follow.

In the eyes of the revolutionists the merit of this machine lies in the fact that it can be operated without any danger to the operator. Moreover it is always ready and can be regulated to a moment. Heretofore clockwork or a lighted match was necessary to produce an explosion and the result was that once set going the machine could not be stopped. This new machine, however, can be stopped at any moment before the explosion takes place. After placing in position the operator may decide to postpone the shake-up for a while and then all that will be necessary for him to do will be to turn the infernal device upside down and put it back in his pocket.

He will run absolutely no risk in handling the machine, for by means of the five plugs of blotting paper in the glass tube he can determine the very moment at which the explosion is to take place. If he allows the liquid to trickle very quickly he may confidently expect an explosion in five minutes, whereas, if he uses the five plugs of blotting paper he may reckon on a full hour of flight before the liquid touches the detonator.

Nihilists consider the invention of this machine almost as important as the invention of dynamite and are very anxious to learn what steps the authorities will take to guard themselves from it. When the dynamite bombs came into use among anarchists the authorities in Wrance and other countries placed many restrictions on the sale of dynamite, and it is assumed in revolutionary circles that they will pursue the same policy now and by restricting the sale of dangerous chemicals and explosives render it difficult, though hardly impossible, for their implacable enemies to do much harm with this new instrument of destruction. What will make their task especially difficult is that they do no know what kind of explosives and liquid is used in the new machine and the nihilists are dtermined that they shall not be enlightened on this point.

Take notice, members of the Auburndale B. B. C., there will be a meeting Wednesday evening, August 31, at Milburn hotel parlors to arrange dates away from home.

Up to a few months ago Jacob Lauck, an old man of 67 years, residing in Berkeley county, West Virginia, was the possessor of a snow-white head of hair. But in recent months a gradual metamorphosis has been taking place in this respect. It began with the appearance of a few hairs of an intensely black color, which gradually became more numerous until, at the present time, very few white hairs can be seen in his head. Mr. Lauck and his neighbors alike are at a complete loss to account for the unexpected renewal of a youthful hue in locks once silvered.

A COSTLY FLIRTATION.

Trifling With a Married Woman, Even If She Is Pretty, Don't Go Down South.

Did you ever flirt? Well, I should smile unreservedly and often. My wife knows me too well to ask such a question, but at the same time she is aware that I never flirt now—never!

I got myself into innumerable scrapes by flirting, but there was one that was just a little too sensational for even my iron nerve. And no man can possibly flirt without that outfit of moral ore.

I was traveling in the south at the time, and found myself one day at noon stranded near a shabby cabin on the hillside where it seemed impossible for human beings to live, but which gave signs of being habited, although the door was close shut. I rapped without dismounting, using the butt end of my whip, and the door was opened instantly, and by one of the handsomest girls I ever saw.

I bowed and smiled, my horse curveted and pranced, and I thought I was making a fine figure as I asked if I could be accommodated with a dinner for myself and some water for my horse.

"I reckon yer kin, stranger, seein' ez fayther air willin'," and she looked inquiringly at a lank man who had been peeping over her half-clad shoulder.

"It air yer dicker, Jinnie," he said in a drawling voice.

"'Light, stranger," she said; "yer can eat corn bread and bacon, I reckon."

I told her that I could, and gave her the long look of a professional flirter, to which, rather to my surprise, she replied by winking one eye in a manner so fantastic that had she not been really handsome it would have made her look grotesque.

"So this is to be a game that two can play at," I thought to myself as I followed my hostess into the cabin.

The father talked crops, politics and weather in a drawling, monosyllabic sort of way, and I watched the daughter and got in some smiles and smirks which were meant to show that I admired her and to which she responded with as much alacrity as a regular city flirt.

While I ate my dinner she waited on me and I managed to say several things that were not intended for the father's ears. He did not seem to notice us, or perhaps was quite willing that I should admire his pretty daugther. She was a blonde, and blondes always made me giddy-headed. You will notice that I speak in the past tense—my wife is a brunette.

While I was eating and flirting I noticed that the lank father was busy with the stub of a pencil and a bit of wrapping paper, and I concluded from certain glances he cast at me that he was figuring up my dinner fee. This is not characteristic of the hospitable south, but there, as well as in other parts, avarice, or rather necessity, sometimes prevails. So I asked as I rose from the table what the damage would be for what I had eaten.

"We don't take no pay for vittles," said my pretty hostess, with a musical intonation that quite captivated me.

"No, stranger, I reckon we can give ye a bite for nothin', but foh abusin' yer priverlidges an' a trespassin' on other folks' property, heah air yer bill, an' it's all regular made out."

I took the bit of paper in my hand, and this is what I read:

"mr. strainger Detter two soth Sharples for lookin crosside at His Wif 50cts. for tow dozen larffs in the face of mis Sharples $1. For five wunks from Miss sharples, 50cts. Totall, $2.00."

"But this is outrageous," I said; "in the first place I thought your wife was your daughter and"——

Mr. Sharples reached for his gun, which was behind the door.

"That don't go down," he said, and began to fool with the trigger.

"That settles it," I said, and I paid the $2 and, with a hard, bitter laugh at my folly, I mounted my horse and rode away. The charming Mrs. Sharples looked after me with speculation in her eyes, and it's dollars to cents that that episode cured me of miscellaneous flirtations.—Detroit Free Press.

CONCESSIONS TO NAVAL AND GRAND ARMY VETERANS.

The Baltimore & Ohio railroad will grant most liberal concessions in the way of stop-over privileges on the tickets sold for the reunion of the naval veterans at Baltimore, September 15 to 19, and for the Grand Army encampment at Washington, commencing September 20. Tickets will be sold at the offices of the company and at offices of the principal railroad companies of the west, from September 13 to 20, inclusive, at very low rates, and will be valid for return journey until October 10. Both going and returning tickets will be good to stop off at all stations between Cumberland and Baltimore, a region rendered familiar to all veterans by the constant warfare along the Potomac. The signature of purchaser to tickets will not be required, nor will it be necessary to have them stamped to make them valid for return journey.

A BICYCLIST'S OUTFIT.

W. J. Barry is getting in trim for a long trip on the wheel. His outfit would astonish the natives of other places than Pennsylvania. The amount of witch hazel and bandages that he is going to take along is not to be mentioned. He is armed with a kodak and expects to return to Philadelphia with many fine pictures. He served a long while on a railroad engineering corps in this state and knows where to find the choicest scenes. The invention of inventions, however, is what you may call a dog douche. This is a douche filled with ammonia, and it is calculated to alter the hostile intentions of the most voracious dog of the most unhospitable farmer in the state. It has an equally delightful effect upon the inflamed imagination of a bull. With one of these things in his pocket a bicycler-photographer can take a view from wherever he desires without perturbation of spirits upon the approach of the dog or the bull.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

POLYGLOT CHINA.

Facts Not Generally Known Concerning the Speech of That Great Empire.

It is true that the inhabitants of Pekin, Canton, Shanghai, Futwa and Amoy speak Chinese. But as to other parts of the country it is also true that a citizen of the places named cannot understand the inhabitants any more easily than can a Berliner, an Englishman, or a Parisian a Dutchman, says Ostasmtischer Lloyd. Thus the position of the Chinaman in his own country, where various so-called dialects are spoken, is rather peculiar. The Chinese dialects have nothing in common with the patois or conversational forms of language. They are used by the highest and lowest classes, the savants and uneducated, the officials and the coolies. The dialect is a language by itself. The various dialect forms, it is true, are related to one another in somewhat the same manner as the Arabic to the Hebrew, Syrian and other Semitic tongues, or German to English, Dutch, Danish, Swedish, etc.

If it is desirable to classify the numerous dialects they may be divided into the Canton, Hakka, Amoy, Swatow, Shanghai, Ningho, the Hainanese and the Mandarin. The youngest of these dialects is the Mandarin. Mandarin, contrary to the general impression, is not the universal language of China. The Canton tongue resembles the ancient Chinese spoken 3,000 years ago more closely than the Mandarin. The Hakka shows also traces of great antiquity. It is much older than the Mandarin, almost equaling in point of age the Canton tongue or Cantonese. The same thing may be said of the Swatow, Amoy and Shanghai dialects. In general we may say that the languages spoken in southeastern China show traces of the ancient Chinese tognue, while the Mandarin tongue is modern.

"In addition to these main divisions," continues the article, "there are many other quasi-dialects, spoken in some instances by thousands of people. But the same word forms, or dialects, are not used by all persons in a single district, although the districts—civic divisions—as a rule, are much smaller than those in the countries of western Europe. People distant from one another only a few miles often use totally different dialect forms. In some of the larger cites, such as Canton, with more than 1,000,000 inhabitants, one often finds several dialect forms in use. The variations in the Chinese tongue are so great, indeed, that it is not too much to say that there are as many dialect forms in the flowery kingdom as days in the year.

The most widely spread language is the Mandarin. It is used in one form or another in 14 or 15 of the 19 provinces composing China. There are also Northern and Southern Mandarin tongues. The best Northern Mandarin dialect is spoken in Pekin, while the best Southern Mandarin in spoken in Nankin. A third marked form of the same tongue is used in West China, especially in Tsien-Kiang. People who speak the various Manderin dialects, however, can understand one another readily. If we estimate the population of China at 360,000,000 of people at least 300,000,000 use the Mandarin tongue. All persons, from whatever part of China, who desire to enter political or official life learn this tongue.

"The other Chinese languages are spoken by comparatively small numbers of people. About 20,000,000, for instance, speak Cantonese in one form or another. It is used in the greater part of the province of Quang-Tong. About one-third of the people of this province use the Hakka tongue. In its northestern part the Swatow dialect is also heard. Cantonese is also spoken in the Kuangsi province. There are not so many dialect forms of the Hakka tongue as of the Cantonese. Passing up the coast, we find about 3,000,000 people speaking Swatow. In all probability 9,000,000 Chinese use the Amoy dialect, which resembles Swatow about as closely as Portuguese resembles Spanish. Still further up the coast we find the Futwa dialect. It is used in a district about 150 miles long and 300 miles broad, containing a population of 5,000,000. This country is for the most part mountainous. The dialects of Ningho and Shanghai, although only a few miles apart, differ greatly. The Hainanese is spoken by the people of Hainan. It is related to the Amoy and Swatow dialects—slightly resembling the Japanese—and is spoken by about 3,000,000 people. The inhabitants about Lutshu, between Japan and Formosa, also speak Hainanese.

"The introduction of a uniform language in China is only a dream. Two hundred years ago the Emperor Kang-hi founded schools in various parts of the empire in the hope of accomplishing that end, but the result was disappointing. It may be accomplished in the future when railroads in various parts of the country bring the people closer together. Centuries will pass before that time, however.* * * The Mandarin tongue, if any, will become the universal one in China."

IMPURE WATER.

Its Effect Upon the Health—How It May Be Purified.

Pure water does not exist in nature. It is an ideal substance to which the purest water that can be prepared by the chemist only approximates. From a chemical standpoint every foreign substance which water may contain is an impurity, but, hygienically considered, water is called impure when it contains excessive amounts of mineral matter in solution or in suggestion; when it contains organic matter of vegetable or animal origin, or the products of the decomposition of such matter in quantities exceeding certain generally accepted but rather arbitrarily assigned to limits, or when it is shown to contain living organisms believed to be associated with or productive of diseases which water may communicate.

All filth in food or drink is to be abhorred, but none the less, distinction must be made between that which, containing or accompanying specific disease germs, may give to specific diseases, and that which is, while not unobjectionable, yet apparently incapable of materially affecting health.

The chemist is as yet unable to distinguish disease-producing from relatively harmless impurities in water. He can recognize those constituents which indicate organic pollution; demonstrate the present existence of putrescent material, or show that such material has previously existed by the recognition of the products of its decay, but he can by no means assert with certainty that any given water will necessarily give rise to disease or will certainly prove to be unwholesome.

Waters containing putrescent organic matter of animal origin have been drunk without harmful results. Such cases are on record, and, on the other hand, waters which analysis has shown to be of fair chemical purity have unquestionably given rise to disease. Nevertheless the chemical analysis of drinking waters, despite the limitations and imperfections of our processes, furnishes most valuable information, in no other way to be obtained. There are unmistakable signs of pollution which analysis may reveal, and such warnings should not go unheeded.

The purification of polluted water by direct chemical treatment has been affected with more or less success in many ways, all practical methods involving the separation of precipitated matter by sedimentation or filtration after treatment of the water. In other words, there is no chemical agent which, by simple addition to impure water, will render such water pure and unwholesome. By chemical treatment we may precipitate lime and other earthly salts if present in undue quantity, coagulate and remove organic matter and bacteria, or promote the oxidation of such matter; and various processes accomplishing more or less perfectly these results have during recent years been employed.—Science.

SAGACITY OF MARTINS.

A Farmington, Me., gentleman tells a good story of the sagacity of the purple martins, which abound in that vicinity. This gentleman has over 50 of these social birds in the house upon his grounds. A day or two ago, while the birds were flying about the garden, a cat caught one of the martins and started off with it in her mouth, the bird crying piteously. Quick as a flash, however, the whole flock of martins were after pussy, lighting on her back as "thick as fleas," pecking and scratching her and screaming as only martins can. Puss could not stand this very long, and she dropped the martin, arched her back up, spit and ran for life. Then the birds left her and all flew to the house, loudly chattering over the rescue of their comrade.—Kennebec Journal.

VOLCANIC ERUPTIONS AT SEA.

Strange Spectacle of a Great Fish Playing in Troubled Waters.

One of the greatest mysteries of science is that magnificent display of coronal streamers and soft banners of light that is seen around the totally eclipsed sun. Several recent investigations tend to show that this wonderful phenomenon is of electric or magnetic origin. Mr. M. I. Pupin, Columbia college, has just finished most suggestive facts bearing upon this question, through a series of experiments on electric discharges in imperfect vacua.

Photographs of such discharges, made by Mr. Pupin, bear an astounding resemblance to the solar corona. Inasmuch as the space immediately around the sun must almost necessarily contain large quantities of vapors and meteoric dust, it does not seem difficult to conceive that a condition of things exists there which is suited to electric manifestations on an immense scale.

Yet, after all, when we think of the tremendous energy of the sun, which, is able to make daylight upon the earth, to warm with its life-supporting rays planets that circle around it at a distance of tens and hundreds of millions of miles, and to awaken the magnetism of our globe until the air is aflame with auroral lights, we can hardly wonder that it should cause the nearer regions of space around its own sphere to glow with strange radiance.—Youth's Companion.
